

BOWLING GREEN STATE UNIVERSITY

Call for Adjunct Instructor Pool Applications for the School of Family and Consumer Sciences

The School of Family and Consumer Sciences in the College of Education and Human Development at Bowling Green State University (BGSU) is expanding its pool of qualified individuals to teach courses. Individuals must have appropriate master's degree in the instructional area. For more information about the program areas see the school website <http://www.bgsu.edu/education-and-human-development/family-and-consumer-sciences.html>.

Instructional areas of interest include:

Fashion Merchandising and Product Development in the areas of textiles, merchandising, product development, fundamentals of apparel, visual merchandising and apparel careers.

Health Promotion in areas of health and wellness, health promotion, communication strategies, human sexuality, and drug use and abuse.

Human Development and Family Studies in the areas of marriage and family, lifespan development, families, communities, and schools, family resource management, family interaction, family life programming, family diversity, parenting processes, creativity for young children, pre-k teaching methods, and adult development.

Interior Design in the areas of codes, specifications and regulations, professional practices in interior design, textiles, interior design I studio, and introduction to interior design.

APPLICATION INFORMATION

Interested part-time adjunct instructors should submit curriculum vitae, transcripts, two letters of reference and letter of interest to:

Dr. Deborah Wooldridge, Professor and Director
School of Family and Consumer Sciences
118 Eppler Center
Bowling Green State University
Bowling Green, Ohio 43403

Bowling Green State University is an AA/EEO/Vet employer. We encourage applications from women, minorities, veterans, and persons with disabilities regardless of age, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, or genetic information.