Spring Edition Issue 5: May 2013

Earth Week Celebra-

BGSU will have a variety of activities going on during Earth Week. All events are open to students, including the screening of two films. "Shattered Sky" is a documentary that looks at how the Montreal Protocol came about, and how the lessons learned from that can be applied to climate change which will be screened Tuesday April 16 at 7:30pm in South Hall 111. "Triple Divide" discusses the issues surrounding hydraulic fracturing ("Fracking") and how we should approach the issue, and will be screened Thursday April 18 at 7:30pm in South Hall 111. Both films are free and available for anyone to attend. As well as the films, there will also be a number of volunteer opportunities, as well as a guest speaker on Earth Day (Monday, April 22). For a full schedule, check out bgsu.edu/offices/sustainability.
