To Whom It May Concern:

We would like to place a call for subscriptions in your next volume. Following is the information we would like to include:

Community Literacy Journal & Forum
<http://www.communityliteracy.org>

We're pleased to offer one-year subscriptions to the newly inaugurated Community Literacy Journal:

Institutions and libraries: $25.00

Faculty: $15.00

Graduate students and community workers: $10.00

The mission of the Community Literacy Journal & Forum is to provide a place where academics and other community literacy workers can share ideas, learn about activities and projects, discuss theory and practice, and share resources. For the purposes of the journal, "community literacy" is understood as the domain for literacy work that exists outside mainstream educational and work institutions. It can be found in institutionalized programs devoted to adult education or lifelong learning or work with marginalized populations, but it can also be found in more informal, ad hoc projects. For us, literacy is defined as the realm where attention is paid not just to content or knowledge but to the symbolic means by which it is represented and used. Thus, literacy makes reference not just to letters and to text but to other multimodal and technological representations as well.

Articles in the fall and spring issues will address research in community literacy; rhetoric and community literacy; regional aspects of community literacy; and technology and community literacy. A list of upcoming articles is available online.
