Library staff have created test scripts and are using them to assess the Avalon system. As they go, ITS developers are evaluating problem reports and fixing bugs in the installation. The project team has gained considerable experience with new technologies while getting Avalon into a stable configuration. The last major component not yet complete is the configuration of Wowza for media streaming. While the Library staff test functionality, ITS developers are evaluating the import process from Variations and the batch upload tool. As time allows in the project we will request integration for a Canvas LTI.
