2014 Add Health Users Conference

The Add Health Users Conference will be held June 26-27 on the campus of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) in Bethesda, Maryland. The principal goal of the conference is to give researchers who are working with data from Add Health an opportunity to share research goals, experiences, and results. It will also provide an opportunity for those interested in working with the data to learn how they are currently being used by others.

Conference information and on-line registration are available on the Add Health website.
