

CFDR Update: December 12, 2014

2011-2013 NSFG Public Use Files and First Report Released

The new public use data files from the 2011-2013 NSFG have been released on the NSFG webpage: <http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/nsfg.htm>. These files include information gathered from 10,416 interviews conducted between September 2011 and September 2013, with 5,601 women and 4,815 men aged 15-44.

Census Bureau Plans to Drop Some Family-Related Questions

The U. S. Census Bureau is considering cuts to important family-related questions in its American Community Survey. To find out more information about the proposed cuts, and how to contact officials to oppose the cuts, please check out the National Center on Marriage and Family Research's webpage:

<http://www.bgsu.edu/ncfmr/SAVEMARRIAGE.html>

Call for Applications: Summer Residential Scholarship Institute at Brown University

From June 6-20, 2015, Brown University will host an international residential institute designed to enhance the scholarship, research, methodological skills, training, and networks of early-career social scientists from around the world. This Institute is part of Brown University's International Advanced Research Institutes initiative (BIARI). Review of applications closes January 18, 2015. To apply, please visit <http://watson.brown.edu/biari/institutes/brown/2015>.

ICPSR Summer Undergraduate Internship Program – Applications due January 31, 2015

The Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) is accepting applications for its annual summer internship program. Interns spend ten weeks from June to August 2015, at ICPSR (Ann Arbor, Michigan). Learn more at this link.