Call for Papers: Health, Crime and Punishment of African American Males – due December 1st

Editors of the book series Research in Race and Ethnic Relations seek submissions for a volume on the theme "Health, Crime and Punishment of African American Males: Enduring Social Costs of Racial Inequality." They seek papers on an array of topics, including submissions that "examine the ways in which the social control of African American males in the form of arrests, sentencing, correctional confinement and their aftermath affect marriage, family cohesion and stability, and the economic standing of black males (and females) and the communities in which they live." Submit manuscripts by Dec. 1, 2015. For more information, please visit: http://www.emeraldgrouppublishing.com/products/journals/call_for_papers.htm?id=6251.
