

CFDR Update: December 16, 2016

Spring Speaker Series Begins Wednesday, February 1stDr. Kelly Purtell

Department of Human Sciences, Ohio State University

Wednesday, February 1st, 12:30-1:30 pm

Bowen-Thompson Student Union, Room 207

Spring Speaker Series Schedule • Spring Workshop Schedule

Call for Papers: American Sociological Association Meeting – Submissions due January 11, 2017

The theme of the 2017 annual meeting is “Culture, Inequalities, and Social Inclusion across the Globe” and it will take place August 12-15 in Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Visit the 2017 Call for Papers guide.

Columbia University Postdoctoral Research Opportunities in Poverty & Social Policy – Application deadline March 1, 2017

The Center on Poverty and Social Policy and the Columbia Population Research Center are recruiting two postdoctoral research scholars. One postdoc will work with faculty and staff to conduct new analyses of national, state, and city trends in poverty using an improved measure of poverty based on the supplemental poverty measure (SPM). The other will support a project on the costs, benefits and distributional consequences of alternative policy packages to halve U.S. child poverty. Job descriptions and application details can be found at the links below:

<http://cupop.columbia.edu/career-opportunities/postdoctoral-research-scholar-child-poverty><http://cupop.columbia.edu/career-opportunities/postdoctoral-research-scholar-supplemental-poverty-measure>

CFDR Spring Symposium – March 16, 2017

The CFDR's 2017 symposium will focus on generational divides across the life course. The guest speakers will be:

- Dr. Phyllis E. Moen, McKnight Presidential Endowed Chair and Professor, Department of Sociology, University of Minnesota
- Dr. Paul Taylor, former Senior Fellow of the Pew Research Center
- Dr. Monica Kirkpatrick Johnson, Professor of Sociology, Washington State University