The graduate program in philosophy at Bowling Green State University (BGSU) occupies a unique place in North American philosophy education. An M.A. in Applied Philosophy has been offered since 1979, and a Ph.D. in Applied Philosophy has been offered since 1990. At the heart of both programs is a commitment to bring philosophical sophistication and ethical awareness to matters of public concern.

Highlights of BGSU’s graduate programs in philosophy include:

- A large concentration of faculty specializing in moral and political philosophy. Meet our faculty: www.bgsu.edu/philosophyfaculty

- The annual BGSU Workshop in Applied Ethics and Public Policy. Recent topics have included “The Ethics of Policing and Prisons,” “The Scope of Religious Exemptions,” and “The Ethics of Self-Defense.” Learn more: www.bgsu.edu/philosophyworkshops

- Opportunities for internships and civic engagement in both the public and the private sphere. Students have recently held internships at MetroHealth Hospital in Cleveland, Children’s Mercy Center for Bioethics in Kansas City, and Beaumont Hospitals in Royal Oak, MI.

Learn more: www.bgsu.edu/philosophygradprogram
Contact: Graduate Director Sara Worley (sworley@bgsu.edu)
Apply: https://gradapply.bgsu.edu/apply/