Advanced Drainage Systems (ADS)

Advanced Drainage Systems, Inc. is the world's largest manufacturer of polyethylene drainage products. More than 30 years ago ADS observed the cumbersome and ineffective materials being used for drainage and surface water control. Recognizing the importance of managing our nation's water resources, ADS researched and developed a structurally superior corrugated polyethylene pipe that was perfectly suited for subsurface drainage. Introduced in the United States in 1966, this plastic pipe proved to be far superior to the materials in use at the time. Its many advantages included lightweight construction for easy handling, high resistance to corrosion and abrasion, and strength and durability to withstand severe loading conditions. It was not surprising that the ADS pipe soon became the clear choice for applications in agriculture, mining, forestry, recreation, and civil engineered construction projects. Our commitment is reflected by several significant technological innovations. Without doubt, the workhorse of construction plastics is High Density Polyethylene (HDPE). The company that has led the development of HDPE for drainage products is Advanced Drainage Systems, with a record of research and breakthrough applications dating back to the 1960s. We have seen the enormous cost of rebuilding yesterday's infrastructure as metals and concrete complete their often limited service life. Today, the engineered plastic system is a reality, providing better hydraulic performance, extended service life, and reductions in installation and maintenance costs. Tomorrow, you will continue to see new products and applications from ADS, the world leader in HDPE drainage systems

West, Inc.

The Company: WEST. We are a young marketing firm full of driven leaders and future CEOs. With some of the most powerful marketing strategies on the planet, we have the muscle to grow campaigns for our clients. We do it the right way. No cutting corners. Once there, we help them defend those positions and capture even more market share.

The Candidates: We are looking for the "talkers." We want the outgoing personalities we can train in house to be great account managers. We want the individuals who love to learn, embrace a challenge, and grow into the next position. We work with lots of new grads and young professionals who use us to get credible work experience in sales, marketing, and management: working with clients, generating revenue, training, building teams, client relationships, etc.

The Job (at Entry Level): Coming into the office to learn product knowledge; going out in the field to do presentations with clients; customer service, some phone calls/paperwork; FUN at work inside and outside office; account management 101; sales and marketing 101.

The Opportunity: Make a ton of money learning to present and market an exciting service people are desperate to get their hands on. Use that experience to move up the ladder or get a more advanced sales and marketing position. For the right individuals, there is also a unique opportunity for advancement quickly. We train managers for corporations so we have a huge need to develop people into management.

The Goal: To help our clients crush the competition and dominate their marketplace. By getting our clients more customers, we naturally create more opportunity for ourselves to grow and expand. More importantly, our greater purpose lies in helping train managers for our corporate clients to run nationwide offices. We recently opened an office in Charleston, SC; we have 2 other offices in Phoenix, AZ and Cleveland, OH.

Opportunities: Scheduler, Sales/Marketing Team
