

COLLEGE OF MUSICAL ARTS
GUIDELINES FOR THE 57th ANNUAL COMPETITION IN MUSIC COMPOSITION
2023-24

This competition is designed to provide performance opportunities for outstanding composers, and to encourage and prepare students to enter competitions outside the College of Musical Arts.

GRADUATE AND UNDERGRADUATE COMPOSITION DIVISION

1. ELIGIBILITY: Any qualified undergraduate or graduate student registered in the College of Musical Arts, except the first prize winner of the previous year.

2. AUDITION PROCEDURES: Auditions will be held in two stages:
Preliminary screening - The composition faculty will screen scores and recordings and select from two to five works to advance to the Finals. (NO WORK WILL BE CONSIDERED WITHOUT A RECORDING. MIDI realizations are acceptable.)
Final auditions - Compositions selected for the Finals will be screened by the outside judge. One winner may be chosen. The judge need not select a winner if, in their opinion, no participant's work is worthy of the honor.

3. JUDGING: Preliminary screening - Judges will be drawn from the composition faculty of the College of Musical Arts.
Final auditions – An outside judge will be invited by the Competition Committee.

4. AWARDS: The winner will receive a Certificate of Merit and a public performance of his/her/their composition on the New Music Festival in the Fall of 2024.

5. MEDIA: Music compositions for any number of performers (singers, instrumentalists, and/or technicians), as well as works for electroacoustics alone or in combination with live performers, will be considered. Works for orchestra, band, chorus, or greater than 8 performers (new music ensemble) must be approved by the conductors of those major ensembles prior to submission.

6. REQUIREMENTS: Each contestant may submit one composition and recording, not to exceed fifteen minutes in length. The submitted work must have been composed while enrolled in the College of Musical Arts. All manuscripts must be clearly legible and notationally accurate.

7. TO APPLY: An application form must be included with the submission (see next page). The completed form and all submission materials must be sent via email to Kurt Doles (kdoles@bgsu.edu), MACCM director, by 11:59 PM Sunday, November 5, 2023. Works for orchestra, band, chorus, or more than 8 performers (new music ensemble) must be approved by the conductors of those major ensembles prior to submission. Additionally, works with considerable production demands (electronics, staging, etc.) and/or particularly difficult instrumental parts should consult with the MACCM Director in advance of submitting.
