CONSERVATION

From butterflies in our own backyard to tiny toads in Tanzania and giant polar bears in Canada to feathered friends throughout the Pacific Ocean, your Zoo is working to create a better world for all living things.

The Zoo sends dozens of employees across the globe to conduct research, participate in animal rehabilitation and implement conservation programs to better the lives of animals and ecosystems. We don’t forget about our own backyard though, as our West Toledo program does unique conservation work in northwest Ohio. As a visitor, member, volunteer or employee, it is our way to see and appreciate the world-renowned conservation efforts put forth by the Toledo Zoo.

Check out our great Conservation in Action map at the base of the Pedestrian Bridge to learn more about our global efforts. To learn more about how you can join our efforts, visit toledozoo.org/conservation.
