Get thee to a winery

For several evening hours on Friday, Oct. 8, a “large, elite” group of retirees, from left, Ralph Wolfe, Diane and Wally Pretzer, Marge Miller, and Bonnie Woods, enjoyed themselves at the Chateau Tebeau Winery, located near the “large metropolis” of Helena, one mile south of U.S. 6 on Rte. 635.

There was Mary and Bob Tebeau’s large home, where we could make ourselves comfortable on their porch, in their gazebo, or beside the pond with its pretty fish and lily pads.

Nearby were the vineyards and paths through the woods for any who wanted to roam, and, as the sun went down, the comforts of the adjacent winery itself were appealing.

These happy retirees enjoyed panini sandwiches, an assortment of cheeses, and the wine, which led to delightful conversation. The only disappointment was that more retirees did not attend this BGSURA-sponsored event!

NEWS & VIEWS and PENSIONS

Blade puts state legislators in spotlight in pension story

SUNDAY’s [Toledo] Blade (Oct. 31) featured another chapter in its continuing series on the problems of Ohio’s state pension systems, “The Rising Cost of Public Pensions.” In this latest article, the focus is on the personal stake all Ohio lawmakers have in the pension systems.

“Every one of Ohio’s 132 legislators belongs to the Public Employees Retirement System and stands to benefit from keeping the fund solvent – and to lose if benefits are cut or required service time is increased,” the article said. It spotlighted Vernon Sykes, chairman of the House Finance and Appropriations Committee who is an Akron Democrat.

“A career public employee, Mr. Sykes began collecting a monthly pension at 49, after reaching 30 years of service in 2000 – the same year term limits forced him to leave his 44th

District House seat. Elected again in 2006, he’s one of 17 of the 99 in the House drawing state pensions while getting a minimum $60,584 annually and building more retirement income by contributing to a PERS account,” The Blade reported.

Sykes is a Kent State University professor and also contributes to a second pension with the State Teachers Retirement System.

French pension protest

THE protest movement of French workers hoping to prevent President Sarkozy from raising the retirement age from 60 to 62 is losing steam, according to Blade news services Oct. 30. Workers ended their strikes at all oil refineries and strategic fuel terminals. Parliament approved the increase and Sarkozy is expected to sign the bill.

PITTSBURGH City Council refused to approve a deal to lease the city’s parking assets to a consortium led by J.P. Morgan Chase & Co. Instead, the council is proposing that the city’s parking authority issue a 30-year bond and pay it off with parking rate increases. Part of the proceeds would go to the city’s pension fund.

No sale

WALL Street deal-maker and former U.S. car czar Steven Ratner has reached a tentative settlement with the Securities and Exchange Commission over his role in a pay-to-play investigation of New York State’s public pension fund. “The focus on Ratner involves his alleged efforts to help the brother of a pension-fund official get a distribution deal for his low-budget movie,” said The Wall Street Journal Oct. 28.

Also, on Oct. 28, The Journal reported that four former San Diego officials agreed to pay penalties for allegedly misleading investors in $262 million of the city’s municipal bonds. The Securities and Exchange Commission said the four officials failed to alert investors that San Diego had been intentionally under funding its pension plan since 1997 to pay for increased benefits to workers. The settlement requires the approval of a federal judge.

BGSURA BookBEAT

ANOTHER “large, elite” group of retirees gathered at the home of Morris and Helene Weinberger on Wednesday, Oct. 13, to discuss Muriel Barbery’s novel, The Elegance of the Hedgehog. Attending were, besides the hosts, Clif and Judy Boutelle, Phyllis Hartwell, and Diane and Wally Pretzer.

Following delicious refreshments, Helene presented information on the author, influences on the book, and some reviews; then, Morris provided information on significant differences between the fox and the hedgehog since ancient Greek legends. Whereas the fox has varied goals and interests, the hedgehog zeroes in on one in a single-minded way. The participants then wondered whether they were foxes or hedgehogs.

The two major characters in this Paris-based novel of complex ideas, steeped in philosophies, are a 54-year-old concierge, Renée Michel, and a precocious 12-year-old, Paloma Josses, who get to know and understand each other through their connection with a charming, wealthy Japanese man, Kakuro Ozu.

An autodidact, Renée expresses her self-acquired knowledge through philosophical statements; for example, she says that “in the moment of your death, you see your entire life.” Similarly, Paloma says “Dying must be a delicate passage, a sweet slipping away to rest.” Paloma reveals the significance of the title when she characterizes Renée as one who has “the elegance of the hedgehog; on the outside, she’s covered in quills, a real fortress, but my gut feeling is that on the inside, she has the same simple refinement as the hedgehog, a deceptively indolent little creature, fiercely solitary--and terribly elegant.”

BOWLING GREEN STATE UNIVERSITY

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Faculty and Staff:

In late September, I shared with you that the State of Ohio plans to lapse the monthly payment of higher education funding payable in June 2011 to the 2012 fiscal year.

This means that BGSU will have to plan for a funding reduction in the current fiscal year of $5.5 million to $6 million. In addition, unless federal stimulus dollars that were used to balance Ohio's budget can be replaced, we will have to address a permanent reduction in state share of instruction (SSI) in fiscal year 2012 and 2013 that could be as much as $25 million.

There is a great deal of uncertainty about state funding in the coming years and what it means for BGSU. What is certain, however, is that prudent stewardship of the University requires us to plan for these challenges.

Working with the cabinet and deans, I have begun that planning. We have concluded that the best way to address the funding lapse in this fiscal year is to use one-time funding reductions rather than reducing base operating budgets.

In most units, this will be accomplished by reducing existing year-end carryforward balances. As you may know, these carryforward funds are unspent budget balances from previous fiscal years. However, all administrative division heads and college deans will determine their preferred funding source for their respective units.

Our deans and division leaders will be communicating their specific plans as we move forward and you should direct any questions or suggestions you may have to your dean, chair, or supervisor.

We understand that carryforward balances represent long-term planning for some units and that this solution may require those units to revisit some of their plans.

However, given these extraordinary circumstances, I am pleased we have found a solution that should result in no job losses or furloughs and limit the impact on our students.

These and other higher education funding issues will be addressed in the next legislative session. We will monitor these developments and keep you informed as we learn more.

Sincerely,
[Signed]
Carol Cartwright
President
