When data are purchased through Sociometrics, the variables listed in the codebook are named differently in the original datasets. Variable names shown here are the ones used in the original datasets.

Created variables shown here are transformed scores, which were calculated by taking the square root of the original scale scores. This was done to address problematic skew and kurtosis of the data distribution. A transformation of a square root was chosen because it yielded the best statistical properties in the new scores. Responses were recoded to ensure that "NO" or "Never" is equal to "0" (taken from user's guide).
