How to use the Data Command Window

This is the little window that shows up when you first open STATA. You can do the same things here that you would do in the larger Do-File editor but it is not stored. In other words, use the small window if you are interested in quick data explorations, cross tabs, freq, etc. But if you want to save this code then run it through the Do-file editor.