New Data: National Couples Survey (NCS)

Data for the NCS were collected in order to examine married, cohabiting and dating couples' (N=2,018) contraceptive decision-making. The survey obtained separate, parallel reports from both partners, providing unique and detailed data on the power relations, birth desires, method-related expectancies, values, perceptions, preferences, and behaviors of men and women making contraceptive and disease prevention choices within the context of an intimate heterosexual relationship.
