

CFDR Update: November 16, 2012

Call for Abstracts: REVES Network on Health Expectancy

Réseau Espérance de Vie en Santé (REVES), the international network on health expectancies and the disablement process, invites abstracts for the network's 25th meeting at the University of Texas at Austin, May 27-29, 2013. The deadline for submitting abstracts is February 15, 2013. More detailed information about the meeting can be found at: <http://www.reves2013.org/>. REVES is an international organization that promotes the use of health expectancy as a key metric of population health. REVES members are actively engaged in the definition, measurement, and comparison of population health metrics locally and globally.
