Call for Contributions

Presentations can take the form of a paper or powerpoint presentation, a roundtable discussion, an artistic exhibition, or a performance. Undergraduate and graduate students are particularly encouraged to present their work. The committee encourages proposals such as research studies, creative work, and works in progress. Visual creative works (e.g., painting, ceramics, photography) may also be displayed during the conference.

SPANISH &/OR ENGLISH

We invite proposals for presentations in Spanish and/or English on all topics related to Latin America and Latino/a/x Studies, and we particularly encourage topics related to the theme of Creative Resistance and Artistic Activism. Other areas of study might include: immigration & citizenship, culture & literature, history, politics, linguistics, ethnicity & race, environment & society, the indigenous peoples, African diaspora, gender & sexuality, LGBTQ+ studies, art, education, economic & human development, music, performance and geography.

If you are interested in presenting, please submit your abstract (summary of your presentation) by January 15, 2018 at:
