Nuremberg War Crimes Trial
and its policy consequences today

This PDF is made possible by the Graduate Program in Policy History, Bowling Green State University.

Raymond D'Addario’s photographic images courtesy of the Robert H. Jackson Center, Jamestown, N.Y.
On behalf of the Graduate Program in Policy History of Bowling Green State University, I welcome you to our conference “The Nuremberg Trial and Its Policy Consequences Today.” This conference is the result of a collaborative effort among the organizations you will find under the sponsors’ link above. It is also the result of the generously donated efforts of students and faculty at Bowling Green and the University of Toledo College of Law who have worked on this program for many months. The quality of the conference will speak for itself as you attend these sessions virtually.

–Dr. Don K. Rowney
Conference Chairperson
The History of Nuremberg

The Historical Significance of Nuremberg

Chair:
Don K Rowney

Speakers:
Henry T King Jr
Michael R Marrus

Question & Answers

The Nuremberg Trial’s Place in History

Legal Concepts of Crimes Against Humanity, Against the Background of the Trials Conducted by the United States, Great Britain and Austria

Chair:
Michael Bryant

Introduction

Speakers:
Wolfgang Form
Winfried Garscha
Michael Bryant

Question & Answers
Dr. Michael R. Marrus

Michael Marrus is the Chancellor Rose and Ray Wolfe Professor of Holocaust Studies at the University of Toronto, and a fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, and the Royal Historical Society. A graduate of the University of Toronto, he received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of California at Berkeley. He has been a Guggenheim Fellow, and a visiting fellow of St. Antony's College, Oxford and the Institute for Advanced Studies of the Hebrew University (Jerusalem); he has taught at The University of California, Los Angeles and Cape Town University, South Africa.

Dr. Henry T. King, Jr. has served as the United States Director of the Canada-United States Law Institute and chair of the Institute’s annual conference since 1983. A graduate of Yale College and Yale Law School, Dr. King’s career includes extensive experience in the areas of private and public international law. Shortly after embarking on his legal career, Dr. King was selected as a prosecutor at the Nuremberg War Crimes Trials where he participated in the preparation and trial of cases against the major German war criminals. As a result of his experiences at Nuremberg, Dr. King authored a book about one of the defendants, The Two Worlds of Albert Speer (Lanham, MD: University Press of America, 1997), and numerous articles relating to international criminal law.

Dr. King’s government and corporate experience includes service as Deputy General Counsel and later Acting General Counsel of the International Cooperation Administration (U.S. Foreign Economic Aid Program), Washington, D.C.; Corporate Counsel to Bunge Corporation of New York; Chief Corporate International Counsel of TRW Inc., and chair of International Operation Council II of the Machinery and Allied Products Institute, Washington, D.C.

Dr. King has served as chair of the Section of International Law and Practice of the American Bar Association, co-chair of the American Bar Association/Canadian Bar Association/Barra Mexican Joint Working Group on the Resolution of International Disputes, and president of the Greater Cleveland International Lawyers Group.

Dr. King has received numerous awards including the Whitney North Seymour Award of the American Arbitration Association and honorary life membership by the Canadian Bar Association. The University of Western Ontario has awarded an honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Laws to Dr. King.

Dr. King currently is a Professor of Law at Case Western Reserve University School of Law and is of Counsel with Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, Cleveland, Ohio. In light of Dr. King’s continuing accomplishments in the fostering of Canada-United States relations, the Government of Canada appointed Dr. King the first Honorary Consul for Northeastern, Ohio in 2004.
Don K. Rowney

Don K. Rowney is a Professor of History and Senior Research Fellow in the Social Philosophy and Policy Center at Bowling Green State University. He was trained as a specialist in the study of Russia and the USSR. His research, teaching and publications have focused on the history of state administration, Russian political and social history, historiography and historical methods. Professor Rowney served as Nuremberg Conference Chair and moderator of the plenary sessions in this series.

Professor Rowney’s interest in international, interdisciplinary academic programs began in the early 1970s. At that time, in collaboration with Professor Adam Bromke, the United States Department of State and the Ford Foundation, he helped to found the International Council for Central and East European Studies (ICCEES). ICCEES was the first organization devoted to sustained East-West academic cooperation during the Cold War. ICCEES survives and prospers today.
Michael Bryant, Assistant Professor of History and Criminal Justice, University of Toledo

Wolfgang Form

Research Director, International Research and Documentation Center for War Crimes Trials

"Crimes Against Humanity and Control Council Law No. 10"
Winfried Garscha

Chief Research Officer, the Austrian Research Center for Post-War Trials

“Crimes Against Humanity in Austrian War Crimes Trials (in Comparison with Allied and German Trials)”
The Legacy of Nuremberg

Jackson, Nuremberg, Taft and Kennedy: Profiles in Courage in the 1940s, in the 1950s and Today

Introduction:
Don K. Rowney

Speakers:
John Q. Barrett

Question & Answers

The Nuremberg Trial's Place in History

Nation-States' Participation in the Nuremberg Trials and its Implications Today

Chair:
Don K. Rowney

Introduction

Speakers:
Henry Friedlander
Christoph Safferling
Jason Ralph

Question & Answers
John Q. Barrett is a Professor of Law at St. John's University in New York City, where he teaches constitutional law and legal history, and the Elizabeth S. Lenna Fellow at the Robert H. Jackson Center. He is writing a biography of Justice Jackson that will include the first inside account of his year (1945-46) away from the Supreme Court as the chief United States prosecutor of the principal surviving Nazi leaders at the International Military Tribunal in Nuremberg, Germany.

Professor Barrett discovered, edited and introduced Justice Jackson's previously unknown, now acclaimed book That Man: An Insider's Portrait of Franklin D. Roosevelt (Oxford University Press, 2003). That Man, available in paperback, was a Main Selection of the Book of the Month Club and the History Book Club, a Choice Outstanding Academic title, the subject of favorable reviews and media coverage throughout the U.S. and in Europe, and a best seller that now is used widely in high school, college and graduate school courses.

Professor Barrett speaks and lectures regularly about Justice Jackson, Nuremberg, That Man, FDR, the Supreme Court and other topics. Barrett is a regular media commentator on legal and historical issues.

Before joining the St. John's faculty, Professor Barrett was Counselor to U.S. Department of Justice Inspector General Michael R. Bromwich (1994-95), Associate Counsel in the Office of Independent Counsel Lawrence E. Walsh (Iran/Contra) (1988-93), and a law clerk to Judge A. Leon Higginbotham, Jr., of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit (1986-88). Barrett is a graduate of Georgetown University and Harvard Law School.
Henry Friedlander served on the project of the Committee for the Study of War Documents microfilming the captured German documents. Professor Friedlander served from 1970 until 2001 as professor of history of the City University of New York. He co-edited (with his late wife Sybil Halpern Milton) The Holocaust: Ideology, Bureaucracy, and Genocide (Kraus International Publications, 1980), the Simon Wiesenthal Center Annual (1984-1990), and the 26 volume documentary series Archives of the Holocaust (Garland, 1988-93). Professor Friedlander's major study, The Origins of Nazi Genocide: From Euthanasia to the Final Solution, was published by the University of North Carolina Press in 1995. It won the Bruno Brand Tolerance Book Award of the Simon Wiesenthal Center, 1996, and the DAAD Book Prize of the German Studies Association, 1997. Professor Friedlander’s research has also focused on the legal implications of postwar trials, and this investigation has so far led to the publication of the several articles.
Christoph J.M. Safferling holds degrees of Juris Doctor, University of Munich, and LL.M., London School of Economics and Political Science. He is an Assistant Professor in the Institute for Criminal Law, Criminal Procedure and Criminology in the Law Faculty of the Friedrich-Alexander-Universität, Erlangen-Nürnberg, Germany. He has been involved as legal advisor to the claimants in several class action proceedings concerning compensation for forced labour during the Nazi-regime.

Apart from his doctoral thesis, Towards an International Criminal Procedure (Oxford: OUP 2001), Professor Safferling has written articles on criminal law, public international law, international criminal law, as well as European and comparative law. He is co-editor of the German Law Journal and the International Review of Criminal Law. In December 2005 he was named the Whitney R. Harris International Law Scholar of the Robert H. Jackson Center. In the summer 2006 he was a Visiting Professor of International Criminal Law at the University of Marburg, Germany.
Dr. Jason Ralph

Dr. Ralph is a Senior Lecturer of International Relations at the University of Leeds. He is author of Beyond the Security Dilemma. Ending America’s Cold War (Basingstoke: Ashgate, 2001) and Defending the Society of States. Why America opposes the International Criminal Court and its Vision of World Society. (Oxford University Press, 2007).

Dr. Ralph presented ‘A realistic doctrine of international community: UK foreign policy after Iraq’, Research Network on “Communitarian Ideals and Civil Society” within the Society for the Advancement of Socio-Economics (SASE) at the 18th Annual International Conference to be held from June 30 to July 2, 2006 in Trier, Germany.

Dr. Ralph received his Ph.D. in War Studies from Kings College, London and his M.Sc. in Strategic Studies from the Department of International Politics, University of Wales, Aberystwyth.
Don K. Rowney is a Professor of History and Senior Research Fellow in the Social Philosophy and Policy Center at Bowling Green State University. He was trained as a specialist in the study of Russia and the USSR. His research, teaching and publications have focused on the history of state administration, Russian political and social history, historiography and historical methods. Professor Rowney served as Nuremberg Conference Chair and moderator of the plenary sessions in this series.

Professor Rowney’s interest in international, interdisciplinary academic programs began in the early 1970s. At that time, in collaboration with Professor Adam Bromke, the United States Department of State and the Ford Foundation, he helped to found the International Council for Central and East European Studies (ICCEES). ICCEES was the first organization devoted to sustained East-West academic cooperation during the Cold War. ICCEES survives and prospers today.
The International Justice System

The Field of International Law: From Nuremberg to the Present

Chair: Don K Rowney

Speakers: David M Crane, Curtis F J Doebbler, Brenda J Hollis

Question & Answers

The International System of Criminal Justice

International Tribunals: Success or Stepping Stones?

Chair/Discussant: Larry D Johnson

Speakers: Alberto Costi, Chad Novak, Larry D Johnson

Comments

The Evolution of International Justice Systems after Nuremberg

Alternatives to the Present International Justice System

Chair: Samuel Vincent Jones

Speakers: Saby Ghoshray, Raul C Pangalangan, Mary Margaret Penrose

Question & Answers
Don K. Rowney

Don K. Rowney is a Professor of History and Senior Research Fellow in the Social Philosophy and Policy Center at Bowling Green State University. He was trained as a specialist in the study of Russia and the USSR. His research, teaching and publications have focused on the history of state administration, Russian political and social history, historiography and historical methods. Professor Rowney served as Nuremberg Conference Chair and moderator of the plenary sessions in this series.

Professor Rowney’s interest in international, interdisciplinary academic programs began in the early 1970s. At that time, in collaboration with Professor Adam Bromke, the United States Department of State and the Ford Foundation, he helped to found the International Council for Central and East European Studies (ICCEES). ICCEES was the first organization devoted to sustained East-West academic cooperation during the Cold War. ICCEES survives and prospers today.

Return
David M. Crane was appointed a Distinguished Visiting Professor of Law at Syracuse University College of Law in the summer of 2005. Prior to that time he was the Chief Prosecutor of the Special Court for Sierra Leone, an international war crimes tribunal. He was appointed to that position by the Secretary General of the United Nations, Kofi Annan, on 19 April 2002. With the rank of Undersecretary General, Professor Crane's mandate was to prosecute those who bear the greatest responsibility for war crimes, crimes against humanity, and other serious violations of international human rights committed during the civil war in Sierra Leone during the 1990's. Professor Crane was the first American since Justice Robert Jackson and Colonel Telford Taylor at Nuremberg, in 1945, to be the Chief Prosecutor of an international war crimes tribunal. The Office of the Prosecutor is located with the Special Court in Freetown, Sierra Leone. At the completion of his tenure in West Africa, Professor Crane was made a Paramount Chief by the Civil Society Organizations of Sierra Leone.

Professor Crane served over 30 years in the Federal government of the United States. Appointed to the Senior Executive Service of the United States in 1997, Professor Crane has held numerous key managerial positions during his three decades of public service. These include the positions of Senior Inspector General, Department of Defence; Assistant General Counsel, Defense Intelligence Agency; and Waldemar A. Soif Professor of International Law at the United States Army Judge Advocate General's School.

Professor Crane teaches international criminal law, international law, and national security law. Additionally, he is a member of the faculty of the Institute for National Security and Counterterrorism, a joint venture with the Maxwell School of Public Citizenship at Syracuse University.

Professor Crane holds a Doctor of Law degree from Syracuse University, a Master of Arts Degree in African Studies and a Bachelor of General Studies in History, summa cum laude, from Ohio University. Various awards include the Intelligence Community Gold Seal Medallion, the Department of Defense/DoD Distinguished Civilian Service Medal, and the Legion of Merit. In 2005, he was awarded the Medal of Merit from Ohio University and the Distinguished Service Award from Syracuse University College of Law for his work in West Africa.
Dr. Curtis F.J. Doebbler

Dr. Doebbler is a Professor of Law at An-Najah National University (Nablus, Palestine), an international human rights lawyer, and an advisor to the defense team representing former Iraqi President Saddam Hussein before the special court established by the United States in Iraq. He practices law before international human rights tribunals and he teaches human rights law in a variety of settings ranging from universities to projects for homeless persons. He regularly advises non-governmental and governmental bodies, including the United Nations, the government of Sudan, the government of Afghanistan, the government of India, and the government of Palestine.

Professor Doebbler holds degrees in English literature and journalism from Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas. His legal education includes the Juris Doctor degree from New York Law School, an LL.M. (Master of Laws) degree from Katholieke Universiteit, Nijmegen, Netherlands, and a Ph.D. from The London School of Economics and Political Science. His doctoral dissertation is entitled The Individual in the Process of International Human Rights Law. He has lectured on or taught international human rights law and public international law at universities in North America, Europe, the Middle East and Africa. He has been a university lecturer at the London School of Economics, and a visiting Professor at Khartoum University, Tuzla University, The American University in Cairo, Cairo University, the University of Pristina in Kosovo, and Tashkent State Institute of Law. He has served as Professor of Law at An-Najah National University since 2005.

Dr. Doebbler represents individuals in cases concerning international human rights law before African, Inter-American, European and United Nations human rights bodies. As an international human rights lawyer, he has represented, among others, two million internally displaced people in Khartoum State, Sudan; over 300 prisoners in Peru; over 3000 Ethiopian refugees; an estimated 300 Afghan prisoners captured by United States armed forces; refugees fleeing persecution in European countries; Israeli, Palestinian and international peace activists in Israel, and four former or current heads of state, including Saddam Hussein.

His publications are in the field of international human rights law, international law concerning refugees, stateless and displaced persons, peace building, humanitarian assistance and public international law.
Brenda J. Hollis

Brenda J. Hollis is a retired Air Force Colonel who currently serves as an independent consultant in the arena of international criminal investigation and prosecution. She previously served as a Senior Trial Attorney and as Chief, Team Legal Officer and Co-Council Section in the Office of the Prosecutor, International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia. Her duties there included leading the Milosevic investigation prior to the trial in that case, preparing the amended indictments against the former President of Republika Srpska, acting as lead prosecutor in several cases, and assisting trial teams in the Office of the Prosecutor, International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda. As a consultant, she has acted as a presenter and conference co-chair at the Pearson Peacekeeping Center, Canada and also provided training and other assistance to Iraqi, Cambodian, and Indonesian jurists, both inside those countries and in other, outside locations in conjunction with the U.S. Institute for Peace Initiative, the East West Center and the International Bar Association. She also served in the Office of the Prosecutor, Sierra Leone Special Court, as a consultant to the Prosecutor, Acting Task Force Leader. Most recently she has prepared and amended the indictment against Charles Taylor for the SCSL Prosecutor, and has taken the lead in preparing that case for trial.
Vice President for Research and Development, World Compliance Company

Saby Ghoshray
Raul C. Pangalangan

Professor of Law, University of the Philippines

“Lessons from Asian Tribunals”
Mary Margaret Penrose

Associate Professor of Law, University of Oklahoma, SJD Candidate, Notre Dame Law School, Center for Civil and Human Rights

“Ever Again, the Limits of Prosecution”
Samuel Vincent Jones

Assistant Professor of Law, Thurgood Marshall School of Law, Texas Southern University and U.S. Army Judge Advocates General Corps
Senior Lecturer in International Law, Victoria University School of Law, New Zealand

“Addressing the Major Legal, Political and Practical Obstacles Facing Hybrid Tribunals in Post-Conflict Situations: Teaching from Past Experience and Lessons for the Future”
Chad Novak
Law Student, Marquette University Law School
“Virtues of Ad Hoc Tribunals to Conflict Resolution”
Larry D. Johnson
Assistant Secretary-General for Legal Affairs, the United Nations
Larry D. Johnson

Assistant Secretary-General for Legal Affairs, the United Nations
United States Policies and the International Criminal Court

The Influence of the Nuremberg Trial on United States Justice

Chair: Apollos O Nwauwa

Introduction

Speakers: Rodger Citron, Gwynne Skinner, Benjamin Davis

Discussant: Eileen Paul

Question & Answers
Nuremberg War Crimes Trial and its policy consequences today

Apollos O. Nwauwa

Associate Professor of History, Bowling Green State University
Rodger Citron

Assistant Professor of Law, Touro College, Jacob D. Fuchsberg Law Center

“The Nuremberg Precedents and Their Impact on Civil Claims of War Crimes and Crimes Against Humanity in U.S. Courts under the Alien Tort Statute”

Visiting Clinical Professor of Law, Seattle University School of Law; M.St. Candidate, University of Oxford
Benjamin Davis

Associate Professor of Law, University of Toledo College of Law

"Refluat Stercus or Making 'Manure' Roll Uphill: the Problem of Prosecuting High-Level U.S. Civilian Authority and Military Generals in U.S. Domestic Courts for Violations of International Humanitarian and/or International Criminal Law"
Ellen Paul

Deputy Director, Social Philosophy and Policy Center, Bowling Green State University
Ray D'Addario Collection

United Nations Photos

United Nations photographs are the property of the United Nations, which holds all rights in connection with their usage. UN photos cannot be altered, sold, redistributed or used to create derivative works.

Click on the thumbnail images to the left to view a larger image and to get more information.
During World War II, photographer Ray D'Addario was assigned to the Army Pictorial Service Headquarters in London, where all photographic material for the U.S. Army was processed. At the end of the war, the 26-year-old native of Holyoke, Massachusetts, was one of only a few Army photographers assigned to the International Military Tribunal in Nuremberg, Germany.

D'Addario shot a great number of black and white photographs, color photographs and movies at the trials. His coverage was outstanding, despite the Tribunal’s restrictions against the use of flash bulbs. Notably, he was the first photographer to have pictures of the IMT courtroom produced in full color, in the London “Illustrated,” September 1946. A Speed Graphic camera using 4x5 film was used. Later, as Kodachrome film became available, a Leica IIIc was used to make transparencies. D'Addario also shot many photographs of the city of Nuremberg.

His pictures have been distributed worldwide, having been published in newspapers, magazines and books. Mr. D'Addario's account of Nuremberg, its events and personalities is unique, revealed by the stirring images seen through the lens of his camera. Raymond D'Addario was discharged from the Army at the conclusion of the IMT to accept the position of chief photographer in the public information office of General Telford Taylor, chief U.S. Prosecutor for the twelve subsequent war crimes trials held at Nuremberg.
Prosecutor Justice Robert Jackson at the podium, always very serious. His assistant, Mrs. Elsie Douglas, shown at left. Behind Jackson is Thomas Dodd.

—Raymond D'Addario.

Raymond D'Addario's photographic images courtesy of the Robert H. Jackson Center.
We had plenty of time to set-up our flash equipment. This time it was Albert Speer with his attorneys. He received twenty years at Spandau prison, where he smuggled out his notes on scraps of toilet paper to write three books. He donated part of his proceeds to Jewish organizations.

— Raymond D'Addario.
Lunchtime for the defendants, and they got army rations. Julius Streicher, publisher of the anti-Semitic weekly newspaper, is now much thinner. In Gustav Gilbert's scoring on intelligence Streicher came in lowest.

–Raymond D'Addario.
Father and son, defendant Franz von Papen behind glass with Papen, Jr., who assisted in defending his father. Picture taken at night in Room 57.

–Raymond D'Addario.

Raymond D'Addario's photographic images courtesy of the Robert H. Jackson Center.
Robert Jackson and his son William leave the courtroom, where I took this flash shot. Flash pictures were allowed in the outside area. Note the size of the guard and his white broomstick.

—Raymond D'Addario.
I spoke to this girl in the courthouse because she spoke English, she was always well dressed, and she posed in my picture to show how the new translation equipment worked. She and her husband come to Nuremberg twice yearly and we still correspond. Her name was Elly Kupfer, now Mrs. Diercky of Antwerp.

—Raymond D'Addario.
All civilian photographers in Room 260 on the third floor. Besides myself on the right, is Fred Tonne of Milwaukee and Tom Bayless.

—Raymond D'Addario.
A few moments before the morning session, defendant Goering (with his hand on his chin), Rudolf Hess, Keitel and Kaltenbrunner. In the rear can be seen Admiral Karl Donitz (with raised hand) speaking to his lawyer Otto Kranzbuehler, the Grand Admiral Erich Raeder and General Alfred Jodl.

—Raymond D'Addario.
This is one of four cell blocks, this particular one is the one used by the defendants of the IMT. Each cell had its guard, an American guard. This picture was taken after the start of the twelve Nuremberg trials, when Baltic guards were used. A special pass was needed to photograph this scene.

—Raymond D'Addario.
The newly renovated courtroom, a wide-angle shot of the proceeding. Judges on the left, in front are the court reporters. In front of them are seated the defense counselors, defendant Goering at extreme right, with Dr. Alfred Thoma addressing the court. Notice the new lights for the cameramen. The reporters from all nations are seated in the rear while visitors are upstairs, next to a projection booth.

–Raymond D'Addario.
On my first day in Nuremberg, I took a place looking down on the courtroom. It was the 14th of November 1945. German army searchlights were used as photographic lights, and then the drapes were drawn closed.

--Raymond D'Addario.
One of four still photographers on our team, who still needed a pass to enter the court building. We were told to shoot anything of interest, as we had plenty of film.

–Raymond D’Addario.

Ray D’Addario Collection
In my spare time I visited the "old city," this time with the chief of the darkroom. Rebuilding had not taken place, except the cleaning of streets. Frau Hilda Schanbel reads the times from the movie ads, as well as other entertainment places in and around the city.

—Raymond D'Addario.
An additional water supply was dug out to provide water for fighting fires. Children sunbathed on the shore, while others paddled in a “canoe” made of the auxiliary fuel tank from an airplane.

—Raymond D’Addario.
British Prosecutor Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, with his many papers, makes a point to the Court. He uses earphones, a microphone, and has two bulbs on the podium for the use of the translators, red to stop, and yellow to slow down the proceedings.

–Raymond D'Addario.
No flash was allowed during court sessions, but at times, we were allowed for a short time. Here is Rudolf Hess and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, both staring, but not at me. In the rear sat Baldur von Schirach, with pencil in hand, leader of the German youth translators.

–Raymond D'Addario.
A view of the courtroom as seen by the press. The four tables in the foreground are for each of the prosecutorial teams; French, British, Russian and American.

—Raymond D’Addario.
Goering is in uniform, without medals, but with a blanket for extra warmth. Rudolf Hess is busy writing, and the only person not listening to a translation. Donitz is reading a book.

–Raymond D'Addario.
Late in 1946, near the end of the trial, with only paper and paper-duplicates, young German girls assemble the Court’s records in many languages. Court records were on paper, on still and moving film, and on phonographic records.

—Raymond D’Addario.
What a beautiful picture, what a sad picture. Nuremberg with the walled city. The British Bomber Command dropped 13,807 tons of bombs in a January 1945 night attack, killing 6,369 civilians. Over 350,000 homes were lost. Ninety percent of the city was destroyed.

–Raymond D’Addario.

Ray D’Addario Collection
The twenty-one defendants on trial, the leaders of the Third Reich, my best picture, and I took over twenty shots on a tripod. A long time exposure. Someone was always moving. In the back are English, German, Russian and French translators.

~Raymond D'Addario.
United Nations Peacekeepers Arrest Former Liberian President

Acting in accordance with its mandate under UN Security Council resolution 1638, the United Nations Mission in Liberia (UNMIL) Peacekeepers arrest former Liberian President Charles Taylor (second from left in handcuffs) at Monrovia's Roberts International Airport on his arrival from Nigeria today. Taylor was immediately transferred to the Special Court for Sierra Leone in Freetown.

Secretary-General Kofi Annan speaks at ceremony for the opening for signature of the Treaty on the Establishment of an International criminal Court at City Hall ("Il Campidoglio") of Rome, Italy. To his left are Italian Foreign Minister Lamberto Dini; Giovanni Conso (Italy), president of the Diplomatic Conference of Plenipotentiaries on the Establishment of the Court; and Philippe Kirsch (Canada), Chairman of the conference's Committee of the whole. To his right are Francesco Rutelli, the mayor of Rome; Cherif Bassiouni (Egypt) chairman of the Drafting Committee of the Conference; and Hand Corell, United Nations Legal Counsel.
UNMIN Delegation Meets Maoist Combatants

A Maoist combatant pictured as he awaits arrival of the helicopter carrying representatives of Nepal’s Seven-Party Alliance and the United Nations Mission in Nepal (UNMIN) delegation.

Photography courtesy of: UN Photo/Stephen Malloch
Security Council Unanimously Agrees to Establish Criminal Court in Sierra Leone.

Security Council President HASMY Agam (Malaysia) presides over a meeting in which the Council asked the Secretary-General to negotiate an agreement with the Government of Sierra Leone to create an independent special court with jurisdiction over war crimes, crimes against humanity and other serious violations of international humanitarian law, as well as crimes under relevant Sierra Leonean law committed within its territory.
Security Council Convenes Urgent Meeting on Middle East

Wide-view of an urgent meeting of the Security Council on the latest crisis in the Gaza Strip and southern Israel.

Photography courtesy of: UN Photo/Evan Schneider
UNAMID Personnel Guards Supply Convoy

Soldiers from the joint African Union-United Nations Mission in Darfur (UNAMID) peacekeeping force guard a supply convoy.

Photography courtesy of: UN Photo/David Manyua
Security Council Refers Situation in Darfur to Prosecutor of International Criminal Court

The Security Council adopts resolution 1593 (2005) by a vote of 11 in favour, none against with 4 abstentions (Algeria, Brazil, China, United States), deciding to refer the situation prevailing in Darfur, Sudan since 1 July 2002 to the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court.
Secretary-General Speaks to Staff of International Criminal Tribunal

Secretary-General Kofi Annan (second from right) addresses staff of the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY), today at The Hague in the Netherlands, as ICTY Prosecutor Carla del Ponte (right), looks on.

Photography courtesy of: UN Photo/Mark Garten
Special Working Group on Crime of Aggression Meets

Photography courtesy of: UN Photo/Paulo Filgueiras

Secretary-General Meets with Officials of International Criminal Tribunals for Former Yugoslavia and Rwanda

Secretary-General Kofi Annan meets with officials of the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) and the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda (ICTR). From right to left: Ralph Zacklin, Assistant Secretary-General for Legal Affairs; Secretary-General Kofi Annan; Nicolas Michele, Under-Secretary-General for Legal Affairs; Warren Sage, Director of the United Nations Office of Programming Planning and Budgeting; Hans Holthuis, Registrar of ICTY; and Carla Del Ponte, Prosecutor for ICTY.

Photography courtesy of: UN Photo/Mark Garten
Secretary-General Meets Senior Officials of Rwanda Criminal Court

United Nations Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon (left) meets with Philippe Kirsch, President of the International Criminal Court (ICC) during his visit of the (ICC), in The Hague, Netherlands.
Secretary-General Meets Senior Officials of Rwanda Criminal Court

Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon (second from right) meets with the Senior Officials of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda (ICTR), at UN Headquarters in New York. From left to right: Adama Dieng, Registrar of the International Criminal Court for Rwanda (ICTR); Dennis Byron, President of the ICTR; Mr. Ban, and Hassan Bubacar Jallow, Prosecutor of the ICTR.
Links

United Nations
http://www.un.org/

International Criminal Court
http://www.icc-cpi.int/

Robert H. Jackson Center
http://www.roberthjackson.org/

The Avalon Project at Yale Law School,
the Nuremberg War Crimes Trials
http://www.yale.edu/lawweb/avalon/imt/imt.htm

The Frederick K. Cox International Law
Center War Crimes Research Portal
http://law.case.edu/war-crimes-research-portal/

Harvard Law School Library Nuremberg
Trials Project
http://nuremberg.law.harvard.edu/php/docs_swip/di=1&text=overview

The United States Holocaust Memorial Museum
http://www.ushmm.org/

The University of Toledo College of Law
http://law.utoledo.edu/

The American Society of International Law
http://www.asil.org/

Jackson List archive page:
http://www.stjohns.edu/academics/graduate/law/faculty/profiles/Barratt/JacksonList.stg

International Research and Documentation
Center War Crimes Trials at the University of Marburg
http://www.icwc.de

Photography courtesy of: The Raymond D'Addario collection
Nuremberg War Crimes Trial and its policy consequences today

Publications

Selected proceedings will be published in The Nuremberg War Crimes Trial and Its Policy Consequences Today and should be available by the end of 2008.

The publisher is Nomos Verlagsgesellschaft mbH & Co. KG.
Sponsors and Contributors

PepsiCo, Inc.

Phi Alpha Theta, Bowling Green State University Chapter

The Robert H. Jackson Center

The Social Philosophy and Policy Center, Bowling Green State University

Stranahan National Issues Forum—University of Toledo College of Law

University Activities Organization, Bowling Green State University

The University of Toledo College of Law

Special Thanks to:

Unigraphics and Ken Horn for designing the PDF
Christi S. Bartman, Conference Executive Administrator, Department of History
WBGU-TV Services, Bowling Green State University
Christi Bartman

Mrs. Bartman served as the Conference Executive Administrator and Producer for this project. She currently serves as the Assistant Director of the Canadian Studies Center at Bowling Green State University, which seeks to promote greater awareness of vital Canada-United States relationships including economic, political, and cultural affairs. Concurrently, she continues to pursue a Ph.D. in Policy History from the History Department at Bowling Green State University. She holds a JD from the University of Toledo College of Law (1994), an MPA from Troy State University (1988) and a BSBA from Appalachian State University (1984). Her dissertation seeks to trace the political, legal and military use of the term “aggressive war” as posed by the Soviet Union at the 1933 Convention for the Definition of Aggression to the definition currently posed by the Russian Federation to the International Criminal Court. It is her hope that her dissertation enters and spurs on the debate as the issue is currently discussed under the auspices of the International Criminal Court.