North Korea's Nuclear Menace

Speaker:
Mike Chinoy

Edgerton Fellow, Korean Security at the Pacific
Council on International Policy, Los Angeles

Bio:

Until 2006, Chinoy was a foreign correspondent for CNN, largely in Asia, and made numerous visits to North Korea over the course of nearly two decades. He is the recipient of many broadcast journalism awards, including Emmy, Peabody, and Dupont Awards. He also published a book called "China Live: People Power and the Television Revolution" (1999) and his new book "Melttdown" tells the inside story of the North Korean nuclear crisis.

Veteran journalist Mike Chinoy will explain to you how and why North Korea developed its nuclear bomb and how the Bush administration failed to prevent it. He will give a fascinating insight into the power struggles within Washington and how he reported it.

Date: Thursday 9th October, 2:30-4:30 p.m.
Venue: AML119, International News and Communication Resources Centre,
Shaw Campus, HKBU
逸夫校園區樹洪紀念圖書館國際新聞與
