Research Projects and Grants

Grants Awarded

- 2025-2027 Persistence and Desistance across Generations: A Longitudinal Investigation. National Institute of Justice. Peggy C. Giordano (PI), Wendy D. Manning, Monica A. Longmore, and Jennifer E. Copp. $971,369 (d=$739,455).
- 2023-2026 Adaptations to the COVID-19 Pandemic: Pre-Pandemic Continuity and Changes in Emotional Well-Being. Monica A. Longmore (principal investigator), Peggy C. Giordano, Wendy D. Manning, Krista K. Westrick-Payne, Kei Nomaguchi, and Gary Oates (co-investigators). The Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. $426,000 (d=$300,000). Pandemic-related stressors such as economic hardships, job demands, social distancing, and health concerns can threaten well-being, but our knowledge remains limited about how pre-pandemic life circumstances influence responses to the pandemic. This study will assess variation in trajectories of well-being among racially/ethnic adults relying on a multi-method longitudinal prospective population-based study that interviewed men and women from adolescence into adulthood over a twenty-year span. This study is innovative and necessary for determining who entered the pandemic with the greatest risks, and qualitative interviews will provide subjective understandings of how these pre-pandemic strengths and vulnerabilities influenced adaptations to the pandemic.
- 2022 – 2025 Data Archiving a Longitudinal Cohort: Toledo Adolescent Relationships Study. Wendy D. Manning (principal investigator); Peggy C. Giordano and Monica A. Longmore (co-investigators). National Institutes of Health. $142,000 (d=$100,000). Archiving and disseminating the Toledo Adolescent Relationships Study (TARS) aligns with the mission of NICHD to “support cutting-edge research to help improve the health of children, adults, families and communities.” The TARS is one of the few U.S. longitudinal (from adolescence into middle adulthood), population-based data sets available to assess health and well-being trajectories both prior-to and during recent public health and economic crises. We will work with Dating Sharing for Demographic Research to make a new TARS longitudinal data file available through a virtual secure data enclave and launch a dissemination plan to ensure that researchers from a range of fields, such as criminology, demography, economics, family studies, human development, public health, psychology, and sociology have access to valuable data that will provide answers to critical questions about variation in responses and adoptions to recent crises.

- 2021-2023 U.S. Fertility and the Pandemic: Changing Fertility Plans in an Era of Uncertainty and Stress. Wendy D. Manning and Karen B. Guzzo (principal investigators); Peggy C. Giordano and Monica A. Longmore (co-investigators). The Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health & Human Development, National Institutes of Health. $142,000 (d=$100,000). U.S. fertility levels have not recovered since the downward trajectory that began during the Great Recession and further declines are expected during the pandemic. This project relies on two complementary data sets to assess the role of stress and uncertainty on fertility plans and examine the magnitude of change (pre-pandemic and midst-pandemic) in fertility plans. The findings will set the groundwork for future work on fertility in this era, serve as the basis for fertility projections and identify possible targets for a fertility recovery.
- 2020-2021 The Coronavirus Pandemic: Predictors and Consequences of Compliance with Social Distancing Recommendations. Peggy C. Giordano (principal investigator); Monica A. Longmore and Wendy D. Manning (co-investigators). National Science Foundation. $200,000 (d=$140,845)
- 2020-2022 Mechanisms Underlying Desistance from Crime. Peggy C. Giordano (principal investigator); Monica A. Longmore and Wendy D. Manning (co-investigators). National Institute of Justice. $797,079 (d=$565,791) This three-year mixed method project on desistance will provide new insights about the relative salience of individual-level and social mechanisms driving change, and greater specificity about the underpinnings of each of these pathways. The project will include analyses of six waves of existing data, in-depth interviews with respondents representing varied persistence and desistance patterns based on self-report and official records (n=50), and interviews with a romantic partner (n=25) and parent (n=25). Each will provide their unique perspectives on what fosters or inhibits desistance processes. A new desistance survey module targeting respondents who engaged in early delinquent/criminal behavior (n=578) will focus on challenges and derailments as well as successful desistance, and will allow us to document gendered patterns.
- 2017 – 2020 Pathways Linking Parental Incarceration and Child Well-being. Principal Investigator: Peggy C. Giordano. Co-investigators: Monica A. Longmore and Wendy D. Manning. National Institute of Justice ($500,000). The proposed research builds on a ten-year mixed method longitudinal study (The Toledo Adolescent Relationships Study). New structured surveys (respondents will average 31 years of age), combined with the large body of previously collected data will provide a comprehensive basis for assessing the relative salience of specific hypothesized pathways. We address the following objectives: (1) Examine the effect of parental incarceration on a full range of child well-being outcomes for all children born to the TARS study participants (n=approximately 1400). (2) Expand the lens beyond the focal parent to determine whether variability in crime and incarceration exposure across the child’s full network (including multigenerational patterns of incarceration) explains additional variance in child well-being outcomes. (3) Examine incarceration-specific hypotheses to identify mediating mechanisms, including consequences of incarceration for changes in economic circumstances, social relationships, and perceived stress/stigma.
- 2016 – 2019 Social Influences on the Long-term Cessation of Violence. Principal Investigator: Peggy C. Giordano. Co-investigators: Monica A. Longmore and Wendy D. Manning. National Science Foundation ($384,404). Building on the 5-wave Toledo Adolescent Relationships Study, this research will follow-up for an additional assessment all those respondents who reported using violence within the context of an intimate relationship during the course of the study (n=403). Specifically, we seek to document patterns of persistence and ‘desistance’ of these behaviors, investigate the underlying mechanisms associated with the process of making and sustaining positive changes, and identify social and individual factors that distinguish desisters and those who continue this negative pattern within their relationships.

- 2011 – 2016 Life Course, Relationship, and Situational Contexts of Teen Dating Violence. Principal Investigator: Peggy C. Giordano. Investigators: Wendy D. Manning and Monica A. Longmore. The Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. The goal of this project, building on the four-wave Toledo Adolescents' Relationship Study (n = 1,321) is to add a qualitative data collection module of the older two cohorts, focusing on teen dating violence.
- 2011 - 2014 Life Course, Relationship, and Situational Contexts of Teen Dating Violence. Principal Investigator: Peggy C. Giordano. Investigators: Wendy D. Manning and Monica A. Longmore. National Institute of Justice ($346,725). The goal of this project, building on the four-wave Toledo Adolescents' Relationship Study (n = 1,321) is to add a quantitative data collection module of the older two cohorts, focusing on teen dating violence.
- 2010 - 2014 Life Course, Relationship, and Situational Contexts of Teen Dating Violence. Principal Investigator: Peggy C. Giordano. Investigators: Monica A. Longmore and Wendy D. Manning. National Institute of Justice ($597,840). The goal of this project, building on the four-wave Toledo Adolescents' Relationship Study (n = 1,321) is to add a qualitative and quantitative data collection module of the youngest cohort (n = 457) focusing on teen dating violence. Aims include: describing the incidence and prevalence of relationship abuse across the period of adolescence, and as young people navigate the transition to young adulthood; exploring similarities and differences in the nature, qualities, and dynamics within violent and non-violent teen dating relationships; and investigating the situational contexts of violence.
- May 2009 – August 2009 Religiosity and Sexual Risk-Taking among Adolescents and Young Adults. Principal Investigator: Monica A. Longmore. Research Incentive Grant, Bowling Green State University. ($9,985). The proposed study will explore direct and indirect mechanisms through which religiosity influences involvement in risky sexual behavior, and also identify factors that foster or limit the reach of spirituality as a catalyst for making less risky behavioral and relationship choices. A secondary objective of the proposed research is to specify conditions under which a strong religious orientation does/does not result in prosocial outcomes.
- 2008-2009 Demographic Shifts in Union Formation, the Adolescent Period, and the Significance of Intentions. Principal Investigator: Monica A. Longmore. Investigator: Christine M. Flanigan. National Center for Marriage Research, Bowling Green State University, Small Grants Award. ($24,740). The project will address three research questions: (1) Are adolescents' early intentions to cohabit and to marry related to later union formation intentions, five years later, net of the known individual, familial, and demographic correlates of adult union formation? Among those whose intentions have changed, what predicts such change? (2) Do adolescents' intentions predict cohabitation five years later, net of the known correlates of adult cohabitation (individual, familial, and demographic correlates)? (3) Do adolescents' intentions interact with individual, familial, and demographic correlates in predicting subsequent cohabitation?
- 2007-2008 Substance Use, Social Relationships, and the Transition to Adulthood. Principal Investigator: Monica A. Longmore. Investigators: Peggy C. Giordano, and Wendy D. Manning. Research Capacity Expansion Grant, Bowling Green State University. We propose to examine the conditions under which romantic partners' influence may either escalate an individual's substance use or facilitate movement away from use, as well as examine how romantic relationships influence substance use, net of the influence of parents and peers, and assess the relative influence of the individual's and partner's substance use on key developmental outcomes associated with transitioning to adulthood.
- 2004-2006 Social Relationships, Identity, and Teen Sexuality. Principal Investigator: Monica A. Longmore. Investigators: Peggy C. Giordano, and Wendy D. Manning. Agency: National Institutes of Health. ($278,000.00). The goal of this project, building on the four-wave Toledo Adolescents' Relationship Study (n=1,316) is to add a qualitative and quantitative data collection module focusing on self-identities. Aims include describing self-identities, reflected appraisals, and the role of heightened emotionality in adolescents' involvement in high risk sexual behavior.

- 2003-2010 Youthful Relationships and Sexual Risk-Taking. Principal Investigator: Peggy C. Giordano. Investigators: Monica A. Longmore, and Wendy D. Manning. Agency: National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. Type R01 (HD-02-010). ($1,770,602.00). Period: 9/1/03-8/31/08. The goal of this project is to follow-up the youth from the Toledo Adolescent Relationship Study (n=1,316) to (a) identify features of relationships that may influence management of sexual risk; and (b) examine distinct individual trajectories of involvement in high-risk sexual behaviors.
- 2001-2004 Generations of Risk: A Follow-Up of Serious Female Offenders. Principal Investigator: Peggy C. Giordano. Investigators: Monica A. Longmore and Wendy D. Manning. Agency: William T. Grant Foundation. ($560,000.00). Period 8/1/2001 to 7/31/2004. The goal of this project is to systematically investigate the parenting experiences of a sample of female and male serious offenders who were interviewed first in adolescence (1982) and later as young adults (1995/96). We plan to re-interview these respondents and their children aged 12 to 17. The study focuses on determining the nature and extent of risk to children born to individuals who, during their adolescent years, evidenced serious, recurrent involvement in antisocial patterns of behavior.
- 2000-2003 Dating Relations and Adolescent Fertility Behaviors: Disability Supplement. Principal Investigator: Jeffrey A. Houser. Investigators: Peggy C. Giordano, Wendy D. Manning, and Monica A. Longmore. Agency: National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. Type: R01 (HD-36223). ($205,592.00). Period 1/1/2000 to 8/31/2003. The goal of this project is to understand the relationship context of physically disabled adolescents' sexual and reproductive decisions. We plan to directly compare the early romantic and peer relations of physically disabled teens and those formed by their non-disabled peers.
- 1999-2003 Dating Relationships and Adolescent Fertility Related Behaviors. Principal Investigator: Peggy C. Giordano. Investigators: Monica A. Longmore and Wendy D. Manning. Agency: National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. Type: RO1 (HD-36223). ($1,300,000.00). Period 9/01/1999 to 8/31/2003. The goal of this project is to better understand the relationship context of adolescent sexual and reproductive decisions. We plan to specify the nature and meaning of adolescent heterosexual relationship experiences and to determine how variations in these experiences influence sexual activity and fertility-related behaviors.
- 2003-2004 Chronic Offenders and Spiritual Transformations. Principal Investigator: Peggy C. Giordano. Investigator: Monica A. Longmore. Agency: Spiritual Transformation Scientific Research Program. ($150,000.00). The goal of this research is to understand the role of religion in the lives of chronic criminal offenders, of whom some have desisted from crime and others have not. We will re-interview 215 criminal offenders and examine whether and how religion may play a role in criminal desistance.
- 2001-2004 Generations at Risk: A Follow-Up of the Children of Serious Female Offenders. Principal Investigator: Peggy C. Giordano. Investigators: Monica A. Longmore, and Wendy D. Manning. Agency: National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. ($1,301,915.00). The goal of this project is to follow-up a sample of serious adolescent female offenders (n = 127) and a similarly situated male comparison group (n = 127). The study focuses on: (a) determining the nature and extent of risk to children born to individuals with recurrent anti-social patterns of behavior; (b) describing the mechanisms underlying observed cross-generational continuities; and (c) identifying the individual, familial, and other social protective factors associated with variations in child well-being against a backdrop of serious family-related risk.
- April 2004-June 2004 Capacity Building for a Democratic Press: A Sustainable Partnership to Develop Media and Journalism Curricula in Tunisia. Principal Investigator: Laura Lengel. Consultant: Monica A. Longmore. Agency: The Association Liaison Office for University Cooperation in Development. Assist in developing an interview protocol for conducting in-depth interviews with Tunisian administrators and faculty to assess educational development and curricular needs.

- 1995 Women's Self-Evaluations. Principal Investigator: Monica A. Longmore. Bowling Green State University Research Challenge Grant. ($1,793). The examination of women's self-evaluations as predictors of employment and economic opportunity.

Grants to be Submitted, 2024

Parent Stress and Child Wellbeing Prior to and During the Pandemic: A Prospective Analysis. R01 NICHD. Principal Investigators: Wendy D. Manning, Monica A. Longmore and Peggy C. Giordano. The proposed project builds on an 8-wave, over 20-year, study (Toledo Adolescent Relationships Study) that includes interviews with parents conducted during the early pre-vaccine pandemic period (June-November 2020). We propose to re-interview about their children (1,370 with more detail on the focal child (n = 620) to assess the nature and extent of changes in child well-being and identify causes of longer-term difficulties that may be associated with pandemic-related disruptions. Original impact score: 36, Percentile: 22. (To be re-submitted)

- 2003 Developed a new undergraduate course entitled Sociology of Human Values.

Professional Development

- 2017 Fall. Faculty Development Leave. Completed several papers on physical and mental health of young adults, which involved six graduate student co-authors.
- 2016 Attended Grant Writers' Seminars and Workshops. Selected to participate in the In-depth Grant Proposal Writing Workshop. Worked on grant ideas focusing on young adult health. Some of these ideas were further developed in papers with graduate students including Angela Kaufman-Parks, William Clemens, and Sue P. Nash.
- 2013 Attended 2013 NCTE Annual Conference. My participation stemmed from my interest in understanding how and why students learn relative to language use and writing practices. I developed an assignment based on one of the presentations that I attended at the conference. I ask students to draw the research/writing process. That is, visually illustrate the cognitive, and emotional aspects of writing, and your support network while writing. Prior to giving class presentations, I ask the student to describe his or her drawing. Example may show a student working at a laptop at home (cognitive), sweating/swearing (emotional), and holding a puppy (support).
- 2011 Attended 2011 NCTE Annual Conference, "Writing the Past, Reading the Future." Chicago, IL. My participation stemmed from my interest in learning about student literacies and how to connect that to college writing. The sessions that I attended focused on male and female differences in topics chosen to write about for class papers.
- 2007 Faculty Improvement Grant. Self-Identities Grant
- 2005 Attended half-day workshop on Collaboration and Team-Building.
- 2005 Attended full-day workshop on Writing Successful Research Grants.
- 2004 Spiritual Transformation Scientific Research Program. One of ten research teams invited to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania to review research findings on the nature of spiritual transformation.
- 2003 Spiritual Transformation Scientific Research Program. One of ten research teams invited to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania to participate in discussions on conducting scientific research on the nature of spiritual transformation, and to receive information on research funding opportunities.
- 2002 Spiritual Transformation Scientific Research Program. One of forty scholars invited to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania to participate in discussions on conducting scientific research on the nature of spiritual transformation, and to receive information on research funding opportunities. Ten of the forty research teams were awarded approximately $150, 000.00 to empirically examine spiritual transformations.

- 2000-2001 Faculty development leave. Preliminary work on the Toledo Adolescents Relationships Survey funded by the NICHD.
- 2001 Longitudinal Study of Adolescent Health Users Workshop, Washington, D.C. Presented research findings and participated in discussions in analytic techniques appropriate for longitudinal clustered data.
- 1999 Longitudinal Study of Adolescent Health Users Workshop, Washington, D.C. Presented cross-sectional findings and participated in scale development discussions.
- 1994 Family Research Consortium First Annual Summer Institute. Santa Fe, NM. Invited Conference Participation. Attended sessions that focused on federal funding guidelines associated with research on families.
- 1994 14th Annual Lily Conference on College Teaching, Miami, OH. Attended sessions on incorporating new teaching strategies into sociology classes.
- 1993 Fulbright-Hays Training Grant. Participated in a summer program designed to introduce Mexican society, culture and education systems to American scholars through visits and meetings with Mexican colleagues, government officials and attendance at cultural events and travel through Mexico.
- 1990-1991 Ann Madsen DePew Memorial Scholarship, College of Arts and Sciences, Washington State University.
- 1990 Family Income Study Summer Fellowship, Washington State University for Public Policy and the Social and Economic Sciences Research Center, Washington State University.
- 1990 Visiting scholar at the University of Michigan, Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Science. Attended two one-week workshops to receive training in Lisrel statistical techniques.
