Bowling Green State University (BGSU) invites applications for a 9-month non-tenure track position beginning spring or fall semester 2016, for its long standing NAACLS-accredited (through 2020) Medical Laboratory Science (MLS) program. Academic rank will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. This position is within the Department of Public and Allied Health in the College of Health and Human Services. BGSU is currently planning renovations to support new state-of-the-art clinical labs, providing faculty and students opportunities to collaborate with the developing Forensics program. New faculty offices and research spaces will also be available in the newly renovated Health and Human Services Building scheduled to be completed in 2016.

Primary responsibilities include teaching in area of expertise based on candidate’s educational or teaching experience, which may include clinical microbiology, parasitology, mycology, clinical chemistry, immunology, immunohematology, hematology or related courses. The successful candidates will participate in program and curriculum development, recruit and advise undergraduate students, and engage in other program activities.

Qualifications: An earned Master’s Degree by position start date is required. An earned Doctorate and/or ASCP-BOC U.S. generalist certification as a Medical Laboratory Scientist/Medical Technologist is preferred. Salary is competitive and commensurate with candidate’s experience and credentials. Candidates with MLS educational experience (e.g. teaching, curriculum design, scholarly contributions, policy development, and/or educational outcomes assessment) are desirable.

The city of Bowling Green is located in northwest Ohio, and is within two hours of Cleveland, Detroit, Ann Arbor and Toledo, and within four hours of Chicago, Toronto, Pittsburgh, Louisville and Lexington. Bowling Green State University enjoys around 19,000 students from all 50 states and 70 countries and is ranked as a top public institution by U.S. News and World Report. The University is fully accredited by the Higher Learning Commission and is a member of the North Central Association. The Department of Public and Allied Health supports undergraduate degrees in Applied Health Science and a Master of Public Health (MPH) degree as part of the public health consortium with the University of Toledo. The Medical Laboratory Science program was reaccredited in 2013 for eight additional years and it is affiliated with 12 regional hospitals and labs. Together these programs provide excellent opportunities for applied research, internships, and collaborations. More information is available on the web at: http://www.bgsu.edu/college-of-health-and-human-services.html and www.nocph.org.

Applicants should submit a letter of application summarizing their suitability for the job, complete resume/CV, contact information, and three letters of reference written within the last 12 calendar months. Finalists are also required to furnish official transcripts. Candidates must apply by the deadline of September 30, 2015 to be considered.

Hard copy applications should be addressed to: Search Committee Chair, Public and Allied Health, 105 Health Center, College of Health and Human Services, Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, OH 43403. Electronic submissions should be sent as attachments in Microsoft Word or Adobe PDF formats to hhsdean@bgsu.edu.

BGSU is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Educator and Employer. We are committed to a multicultural environment and strongly encourage applications from women, minorities, veterans, and individuals with disabilities. BGSU hires only individuals authorized to work in the United States and requires a background investigation be done for newly hired or rehired employees as a pre-condition for employment.