Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders Speech & Hearing Clinic

Master's Program in Speech-Language Pathology

The Program:

- > 5 semesters of classroom and clinical education, across the scope of practice.
- > Accredited by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association's Council of Academic Accreditation (CAA).
- Meets the academic and clinical preparatory requirements of the Certificate of Clinical Competence, as well as Licensure for the State of Ohio.
- Optional opportunity to meet Ohio requirements for school licensure.
- MS-PhD Bridge program available for those interested in doctoral training.

Mission:

- > To produce entry-level speech-language pathologists who possess foundational knowledge of the field, apply critical inquiry and creativity to solving problems, and serve clients with compassion and caring.
- > Students are trained in both the science and art of clinical practice, through classroom and clinical experiences that complement each other, span the scope of practice, and foster independent growth.

Coursework:

- ➤ 12 to 18 semester hour load during the first four semesters, covering scientific and research foundations of clinical practice, and assessment and intervention across the lifespan and the scope of practice.
- Master's thesis option available, but not required.

Clinic:

- ➤ BGSU Speech and Hearing Clinic provides evaluation and treatment of infants, children, and adults who exhibit a wide range of communication concerns.
- ➤ Clinical training all 5 semesters. On-site and/or in town the first 3 semesters. Off-site half-time placement in the fourth semester. Off-site full time placement in the final semester. All off-site placements coordinated by the Clinic Director on an individualized basis, considering student training needs and personal interests.
- Classroom-based clinical practicum course in the first 4 semesters.

Students:

- Highly motivated, passionate, intelligent, creative individuals whose goal is to become excellent Speech-Language Pathologists.
- 31 students accepted for each fall semester.
