

Academic Vacancy

Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders Bowling Green State University

The Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders at Bowling Green State University is seeking one qualified rank (non-tenure stream) faculty member to contribute to the department's forward momentum. An individual is sought who will foster excellence in clinical and academic training in our CAA accredited speech-language pathology program, with potential opportunities to participate in undergraduate education as well. Our department's faculty members are engaged in a wide range of teaching and research activities, including doctoral mentoring, innovative pedagogies and the scholarship of teaching and learning, and national and international research collaborations. The department has ties with BGSU's J. P. Scott Center for Neuroscience, Mind and Behavior and many other departments and programs across campus. The Speech & Hearing Clinic is an integral part of our master's clinical education, and we have community partnerships expanding opportunities for our students' clinical experiences.

Description:

The qualified rank faculty position is for Assistant Clinical Professor in Communication Sciences and Disorders, speech-language pathology emphasis, available August 2020. This is an academic year (nine-month) appointment with possible summer employment, if desired. Duties include clinical teaching and supervision of students in the M.S. in speech-language pathology program, undergraduate and/or graduate academic teaching, and participation in related service activities as appropriate.

Qualifications:

Master's degree in speech-language pathology, Certificate of Clinical Competence in Speech-Language Pathology (CCC-SLP), and Ohio license in speech-language pathology (or eligible) required. The successful applicant must have a minimum of five years clinical experience as a certified SLP, experience in clinical teaching/supervision, and have completed a minimum of 2 hours continuing education in the area of clinical supervision. Applicants with university clinical and academic teaching experience will receive preference. Pediatric clinical experience desirable.

Salary:

Competitive and commensurate with peer institution levels for rank and position and in keeping with candidate experience and credentials.

Application Process:

Submit curriculum vitae and letter of application that includes: a description of clinical and academic teaching experience and interests, and a personal statement detailing reasons for interest in the position. Provide contact information for three professional references.

Application materials must be received by the application deadline of January 6, 2020. References may be contacted. Finalists will be required to submit an official transcript indicating highest degree earned. Background check is required for employment. Candidates who are interested in learning more about the position are welcome to contact Ms. Donna Colcord, chair of the search committee, at donnaco@bgsu.edu or (419)372-8089 for further information.

For a complete job description and instructions on how to apply for this position visit: <https://bgsu.hiretouch.com/> or contact the Office of Human Resources, BGSU. In compliance with the ADA Amendments Act (ADAAA), if you have a disability and would like to request an accommodation in order to apply for a position with Bowling Green State University, please call 419-372-8421.

Departmental Information:

The Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders is one of ten departments/programs in the College of Health and Human Services. The Department offers a B.S., M.S., and Ph.D. in communication disorders. The master's program received CAA reaccreditation for 2019-2027. CDIS has approximately 110 undergraduate, 62 master's, and 8 doctoral and bridge students. It has 7 full-time tenured and tenure-track faculty members, 2 full-time non-tenure-track faculty members, 5 part-time clinical faculty members, and a full-time clinic director. The Department's Speech and Hearing Clinic is a well-equipped and modern facility, with a state of the art video system installed in 2019. The College of Health & Human Services incorporates 3 academic departments with numerous programs, including social work, food and nutrition, gerontology, public and allied health, and criminal justice. The College is growing, with new classrooms and other facilities that were completed in 2016.

University and Community Information:

Bowling Green State University, www.bgsu.edu, is the city's largest employer. Approximately 19,600 students (including ~2700 graduate students) attend BGSU with over 760 faculty members on a 1,338-acre campus in the northeast sector of the city. Bowling Green is a vibrant community with approximately 32,000 residents. The city has a diverse retail and industrial base, and is conveniently located on Interstate 75, 23 miles south of Toledo, 75 miles south of Detroit, 70 miles south of Ann Arbor, 240 miles east of Chicago, 120 miles west of Cleveland, and 115 miles northwest of Columbus. The Bowling Green City School system includes a senior high school, a middle school, and three elementary schools. The campus and community enjoy a wide variety of cultural events.

Bowling Green State University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Educator and Employer. We are committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive environment and strongly encourage applications from women, minorities, veterans, and individuals with disabilities regardless of age, gender identity, genetic information, religion, or sexual orientation.