College of Musical Arts

Special guest composer: Karel Husa

New Music & Art Festival
Music, like other arts, mirrors what composers admire, what touches us, be it joy or tragedy, beautiful colors of sounds, remembrances, mosaic-like work with notes, threads, strands. I am forever in awe of the masterpieces the great composers have left us over the centuries. Our music must be measured against accomplishments of the past, not only in substance but also in execution.

SCINTILLA (1986) . PAUL HAYDEN

I always enjoy composing music for solo instruments. The intimate relationship of the musician with an instrument inspires me and the idea that music can be played during leisure time or among friends fascinates me.

It is crucial that music should project a definite identity and profile, one that is the genuine expression of the composer’s own “voice,” and one that is truly of the composer’s time and place.

My music is infused with the energy and rhythms of the jazz and pop music that I grew up with.

Now is a great time to write what you want to hear. Sometimes audience members tell me that they don’t understand a piece. What’s to understand? It isn’t an exam. Listen — closely.

It is the abstractness of instrumental music that interests me most: to speak clearly and meaningfully without words.

However you choose or have chosen to spend the rest of your life… love it, for I’m finding that’s really all that matters.

For me, the most successful musical works create, through a perfect balance of craft and emotion, a unique and engaging sound world that transports the listener on a journey of discovery.
DANIEL ASIA heads the composition department at the University of Arizona and serves as co-music director of Musical Elements, a New York-based contemporary ensemble which he also founded. A former Meet the Composer/Composer-in-Residence with the Phoenix Symphony, he is the recipient of many of the most competitive awards including a Meet the Composer/Reader’s Digest Consortium Commission; a United Kingdom Fulbright Arts Award; Guggenheim, MacDowell Colony and Tanglewood fellowships; NEA, Rockefeller and Aaron Copland Fund grants; ASCAP and BMI composition prizes; and a DAAD fellowship for study in the Federal Republic of Germany. A former faculty member at Oberlin, Asia’s music can be found on numerous labels including New World, KOCH International Classics, Albany and Attacca. His music is published by Theodore Presser.

JIM BATES is currently the recipient of a fellowship at the University of Louisville where he is pursuing a Ph.D. in musicology with a minor in art history. His primary interests are performance practice and the music of 17th-century Italy, as well as the music of Medieval Europe and the 20th century. He holds degrees from the University of Louisville and Indiana University, and has presented papers at the annual conferences of the South Central Chapter of the AMS. Bates is an active member of the University Collegium and frequently performs on a variety of historical instruments. Besides his academic and performing pursuits, he is music director of the Louisville Youth and Mandolin Orchestras and teaches bass in the University’s preparatory department.

BURTON BEERMAN, professor of music composition/history (composition) at BG SU, has been hailed by audiences as one of the leading clarinetists of contemporary and avant-garde music whose virtuosity and technical control of the instrument have established him as a remarkable and compelling performer. As a composer, clarinetist, visual artist and computer programmer, he continues to seamlessly integrate technology with other art media through performances in major concert halls and at festivals around the world. Beerman’s numerous accolades include awards from the International Society of Bassists and the Martha K. Cooper Orchestral and Libscomb Prizes. His most recent recording includes his composition, Morning Calls, with the Warsaw Philharmonia and Richard Stoltzman. This past February, CNN-CNNI, CNN-Futurewatch, CNN-The World Today and Headline News aired a feature story on his multimedia dance-opera, Jesus’ Daughter.

Since receiving an MFA degree from the School of Art Institute of Chicago, JANE CALVIN has established an impressive record of exhibitions and awards in Chicago and across the country. Solo shows have taken place at the CEPA Gallery, University of Toledo and the Moore College of Art and Design. She has completed residencies at the Ragdale Foundation, Yaddo Corporation and the Millay Colony for the Arts, and is the recipient of an Arts Midwest/NEA regional artist fellowship award as well as an Illinois Arts Council grant.

ROBERT CARL is a co-director of the Extension Works Ensemble in Boston and chair of the composition department at the Hartt School of Music. His music has been performed throughout the United States and Europe and is published by American Composers Edition. His grants, prizes and residencies have come from such sources as the NEA, Tanglewood, Camargo Foundation, MacDowell Colony, Yaddo and the Rockefeller Foundations. Recent recordings of his work are found on Neuma, Koch International, Centaur, Vienna Modern Masters, E.R.M. and the Aerial labels. Carl studied composition with Jonathan Kramer, George Rochberg, Ralph Shapey and Iannis Xenakis.

JAMES CASEBERG has received the highest of honors for his photography. Recent awards have come from the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, New York Foundation for the Arts and the NEA. Soo exhibitions of his work have been shown internationally and across the United States at the Williams College Museum of Art, Ansel Adams Center for Photography, Birmingham Museum of Art, University of Iowa Museum of Art and the Museum of Photographic Arts in San Diego.

SANGTAE CHANG is a Ph.D. candidate in musicology at the University of North Texas. His scholarly interests cover a broad range of music history and theory, including developments after the second world war in Europe and the United States, analytical paradigms for 20th-century music, and theory and practice in the 16th century. He presented a paper on Pierre Boulez’s First Piano Sonata at the 16th Annual Meeting of the Society for Music Theory in Montreal and will present a paper on Boulez’s Douze notations at the 19th Annual Meeting of the Society for Music Theory in Baton Rouge this year. Currently, Chang is writing a dissertation about Boulez’s early 12-tone practice.

JEAN CHRISTENSEN, chair of the music history department and director of the Center for the Study of Danish Music at the University of Louisville, specializes in 20th-century music. Publications include studies of the music and thought of composers Arnold Schoenberg and Per Nørrgård as well as reviews of recent Scandinavian music and literature on music in such publications as Music and Letters and the Musical Quarterly. A previous Fulbright Research Scholar in Denmark and Sweden, she has received research support from the American-Scandinavian Foundation, NEH, American Philosophical Society and Martha Baird Rockefeller Fund. In addition to her book, From the Literary Legacy of Arnold Schoenberg: A Catalog of Neglected Items, she is in the process of completing an exhaustive bibliography on Schoenberg.

GREGORY CREWDSON received an MFA from and currently serves as a faculty member at Yale. He has had solo exhibitions in highly respected galleries in New York, Los Angeles, London, Paris and Tokyo. His work is included in the collections of the Brooklyn Museum of Art, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation in Chicago, Metropolitan Museum of Art, Museum of Modern Art and Whitney Museum of American Art. He is represented by New York’s Luhring Augustine Gallery.

JAMES E. CROWLEY currently serves as assistant professor of music at Drury College in Missouri. Previously, he was a member of the administrative staff of the Chicago Lyric Opera and held a teaching fellowship at the Aspen Music School. He earned a bachelor’s degree from the University of Illinois and continued with graduate studies at Northwestern, where he completed a master’s and doctoral degree. His works have been performed by the Eastman Wind Symphony, Civic Orchestra of Chicago, Aspen Contemporary Ensemble, Interlochen Academy Symphonic Band, Miller Brass Ensemble, New Music Chicago Spring Festival and the Akademie der Künste at Berlin. Crowley has received commissions from MTNA and the National String Teacher’s Association, and was recently awarded a grant from Meet the Composer.
WALLACE DE PUE, professor of music composition/history (composition) at BGSU, is the composer of several operas including Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde and The True Story of the Three Little Pigs. He composes for all media except electronics, and has over 35 published works. A former curator of music for the Toledo Museum of Art, he has been the recipient of many awards including three BGSU Distinguished Teaching Awards and awards from the NEA, ASCAP and the GUND Foundation.

JENNIFER BLAIR FURR is a third-year graduate student at BGSU pursuing degrees in composition and orchestral conducting. Originally from Pensacola, Fla., her composition teachers include Samuel Adler, Wallace De Pue, Katherine Murdock, Marilyn Shirude and Donald M. Wilson. She has been commissioned to write several works, including Insomnia, which was performed in Cyprus by the Transcontinental Saxophone Quartet. This year, Furr served as a guest composer on Wichita State University's Sixth Annual Contemporary Music Festival where she attended a performance of her composition, Day Cycle. Previously, two of her works were selected as winners of the student composition contest at Wichita.

BRUCE HAMILTON earned a bachelor's and master's degree from Indiana University where he is currently pursuing a doctoral degree in composition. He has studied with Claude Baker, Harvey Selibeger, Frederick Fox and Eugene O'Brien. His works have been widely performed at conferences, festivals and recitals in the United States and Germany. At Indiana, he received the Dean's Prize in composition and the Cole Porter composition scholarship. In addition to private commissions, he has received awards from the Barlow Endowment, National Society of Arts and Letters, ASCAP and the Percussive Arts Society.

PAUL HAYDEN, a faculty member at Eastern Illinois University, received an undergraduate degree in composition from Louisiana State and graduate degrees, also in composition, from the University of Illinois. A former faculty member of Louisiana State, he has received awards, grants or recognition from ASCAP, the American Music Center, Charles Ives Center for American Music, Delius National Composition Competition, National Flute Association's Newly Published Music Competition and the Virginia College Band Directors National Association. His music has been performed in Europe, Russia, China and throughout the United States. With recordings on the Centaur and Opus One labels, Hayden's music is published by Theodore Presser, Carl Fischer and Magnolia Music Press.

DAVID HEUSER, a faculty member at Western University, received his bachelor's in composition from Eastern and his doctorate from Indiana University. His teachers include Samuel Adler, Joseph Schwantner, David Liptak, Warren Benson, Frederick Fox and Don Freund, as well as Jeffrey Hass in electronic music. He has won awards, grants and commissions including a New York Youth Symphony First Music commission. His music has been performed by various groups and individuals, and in connection with SCI, SEAMUS, the Imagine New Music Festival and Minnesota Composers Forum's Sonic Circuits. Heuser's music is published by Carl Fischer.

KAREL HUSA, winner of the 1993 Grawemeyer Award and the 1969 Pulitzer Prize, is an internationally known Czech-American composer and conductor. He completed studies at the Prague Conservatory and Academy of Music and subsequently went to Paris where he received diplomas from the Paris National Conservatory and the Ecole normale de musique. Among his teachers were Arthur Honegger, Nadia Boulanger, Jaroslav Ridky and conductor Andre Cluytens. The Kappa Alpha Professor Emeritus at Cornell University, Husa has received fellowships from the Guggenheim Foundation; awards from the American Academy and Institute of Letters, UNESCO and the NEA; Koussevitzky Foundation commissions; the Czech Academy of Arts and Sciences and the Sudler International Prizes; and the Lili Boulanger Award. He has conducted the world's leading orchestras including those in Paris, London, Hong Kong, New York and Boston. With publications by Associated Music Publishers, he has recorded on the CBS Masterworks, Vox, Everest, Louisville, CRI, Orion, Grenadilla and Phoenix labels. Husa has also received honorary degrees from several distinguished universities and conservatories.

ALEXANDROS KALOGERAS currently lives in Boston and teaches at the Berklee College of Music and Harvard. Born in Greece, he studied composition with Bernard Rands, Theodore Antoniou, John Harbison and Donald Martino at Boston and Harvard Universities. He has received several commissions and prizes in the United States and abroad, and his music has been performed and broadcast throughout the United States, Canada, Europe, Greece, Russia and Japan. Kalogerias is a frequent guest of festivals where he has presented more than 40 lectures on the contemporary music scene in the United States and other parts of the world.

BARBARA KASTEN has had solo exhibitions in major galleries in New York, Los Angeles, Tokyo, Paris and Vilnius, Lithuania. She received a master's degree from the California College of Arts and Crafts, and has established a distinguished record of awards and publications. In 1995, she traveled to Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia as a USIA Arts America cultural specialist and was also invited to Turkey as an artist-in-residence. Past honors include Guggenheim and NEA Photography fellowships. Monographs include EL MEDOL, Tinglado 2, Spain; Barbara Kasten: Works 1986-1990, RAM, Tokyo, and Constructs: Barbara Kasten, New York Graphic Society and the Polaroid Corporation.

In his second year as Director of the School of Art, LOUIS KRUEGER brings distinguished artistic credentials to BGSU. He holds a bachelor's of fine arts in metals and a master's in photography from Northern Illinois University. His work has been exhibited nationally and is included in the collection of the Museum of Contemporary Photography. He has received a number of grants, fellowships and awards, and has presented many lectures and workshops on experimental color photography. Formerly, he served as chair of the department of art media studies and assistant dean at Syracuse University.

WILLIAM E. LAKE, assistant professor of music composition/history (theory) at BGSU, oversees the master's theory program and teaches theory and aural skills. He earned degrees from Indiana University and the University of Michigan. Previous positions include faculty appointments at the University of California at Davis, the University of Wisconsin and Michigan State. His main areas of research include 20th-century music analysis, music cognition and... music-theory pedagogy. His articles have been published in In Theory Only, Journal of Music Theory, Journal of Music Theory Pedagogy, Perspectives of New Music and Tempo. In addition to editing the Contemporary Music Forum, a publication of MACCM, he serves as co-editor of In Theory Only.

ELAINIE LILLIUS is currently a doctoral student in composition at the University of North Texas where she holds a teaching assistantship and is a staff member of the Center for Experimental Music and Intermedia. She received degrees in composition and electronic media studies from Northern Illinois University and has studied with Jan Bach, James Phelps, Larry Austin and Jon Christopher Nelson. Her works have been presented at the College Music Society’s National Conference, SEAMUS National Conference and at the Journées d’Informatique Musicales (JIM’96) Festival in Caen, France. Lillius’ music will be included on Volume 6 of the SEAMUS compact disc series to be released this coming spring.

ROBERT MAGGIO is on the faculty of West Chester University. His music is published by Theodore Presser and his compact disc, Seven Mad Gods, was recently released on the CRI label. Current projects include works for the Detroit Chamber Winds, Meridian Arts Ensemble and a third collaboration with the Stephen Petron Dance Company in San Francisco. His works have been performed by the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, American Dance Festival, New York Festival of Song, Oakland Bay Symphony, Civic Orchestra of Chicago, New York Youth Symphony and the Lincoln Center Out-of-Doors Festival. A recent winner of the Ettichon Award, Maggio holds degrees from Yale and the University of Pennsylvania.

MAGNUS MÅRTENSSON, director of orchestral activities at SUNY–Buffalo, studied piano, voice, composition and conducting at Malmö Musikhögskola and conducting at the Cleveland Institute of Music. His numerous commissions have included incidental music for theater plays by Per-Arne Bengtsson. His latest works, Two Miniatures for Flute and Clarinet and Two Poems of E.E. Cummings were premiered on the composers in the Shape of a Pear concert series, co-founded in 1995 by Mårtensson and other Cleveland-based composers. A native of Sweden, he formerly served as the conductor of the Contemporary Music Ensemble at the Cleveland Institute of Music.

CHARLES NORMAN MASON chairs the music department at Birmingham-Southern College and is managing editor of the international music journal, Living Music. He studied composition at the University of Miami with Dennis Kam and at the University of Illinois with Ben Johnston, Salvatore Martirano and John Melby. His compositions have received several awards including the Delius, Dale Warland Composition and Rome prizes; a BMI Award for Young Composers; and the Panoply of the Arts, City Stages Classical Music and International Bourges Electro-Acoustic Competition. Among the grants he has received are those from the NEA, Meet the Composer and the Alabama Council on the Arts. His music has been performed throughout the United States as well as in Europe and Latin America, and recorded on the N/S, SEAMUS, Innova and Living Music labels. Mason’s music is available from American Composers Edition.

DANIEL McCARTHY is associate professor of music theory and composition at Indiana State University, and instructor of composition, computer music and theory at the Interlochen Arts Camp. He also serves on the Indiana State University Contemporary Music Festival committee and is director of the Midwest Composers’ Forum. His orchestral, electroacoustic, jazz and chamber music has been recorded on over 12 compact discs. He has received composition fellowship grants from the NEA, Indiana Arts Commission, Ohio Arts Council, Mary Anderson Center for the Arts and the Indiana State University Arts Endowment. He has also been awarded prizes from the Ohio Federation of Music Clubs, T.U.B.A. Ensemble and the International Association of Jazz Educators. Prior to his graduate studies, he served as a staff arranger/trumpeter/keyboard synthesist for MCA Records. McCarthy received degrees from Kent State University and the University of Akron.

Born in Havana, Cuba, ABELARDO MORELL received a master’s from Yale. Currently professor of photography at the Massachusetts College of Art, he has exhibited his work in prestigious group shows at the Museum of Contemporary Photography in Chicago, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art and the Museum of Modern Art and International Center of Photography in New York. He has had six solo shows in the past three years, and is represented by the Bonni Benrubi Gallery in New York. Recent awards include fellowships from the New England Foundation for the Arts, John Simon Guggenheim Fund and Cintas Foundation. His monograph, A Camera in a Room: Photographs by Abelardo Morell, has been published by Smithsonian Institution Press.

PATRICK NAGATANI has had two major individual traveling exhibitions of his work circulate numerous museums and university galleries across the country during the past five years. Nuclear Enchantment and Nagatani and Tracey Pendarvis Collaborations: 1983–1989 have been seen at over 25 locations since 1990. His solo and group exhibition record is extensive, as is the number of important public collections in which his work is included. A professor of art at the University of New Mexico, he has received many grants and awards including an NEA visual arts fellowship in 1992.

GLENN G. PALMER received a doctoral degree in music composition from the University of Michigan where he was a Regents Scholar studying with Leslie Bassett, William Albright and George B. Wilson. His music has been performed throughout the United States including recent performances by the Kansas City Symphony and the Charleston Symphony Orchestra. He has received several awards from the Barlow Endowment for commissions from the University of Michigan Symphony Band. Palmer is currently working on a commission for the University of Louisville Symphonic Band.

CARTER PANN holds a master’s degree and is currently completing a Ph.D. in composition from the University of Michigan. He received a bachelor’s degree in composition and piano performance from Eastman and has studied with Samuel Adler, William Albright, Warren Benson, William Bolcom, David Liptak, Howard Sandroff, Joseph Schwantner and Bright Sheng, with work in electronic music from Evan K. Chambers. Awards include two ASCAP Young Composer grants as well as numerous grants for piano performance. His work, Four Concert Improvisations, has been performed extensively in North America, Europe and Australia by pianist Barry Snyder of Eastman. As a pianist, Pann has recorded on the Equilibrium and Bridge labels.
DAVID PATTERSON received a Ph.D. in historical musicology from Columbia University this past May. His dissertation, Appraising the Catchwords, c. 1942-1950: John Cage's Asian-Derived Rhetoric and the Historical Reference of Black Mountain College, describes the impact of Asian philosophic terminology on Cage's own writings and contextualizes his aesthetic development in the late 40s and early 50s through the example of his visits to Black Mountain College.

NIGEL POOR graduated from the Massachusetts College of Art in 1992. In 1993, she won a Polaroid Artist Support Grant and began a solid record of exhibitions. Solo shows include those at the University of the Arts in Philadelphia and Oregon State, as well as in a number of group exhibitions in California, Utah and Paris.
