Alexander Fiterstein

has received critical acclaim for his concerto and chamber music performances, and is quickly becoming recognized for his intuitive and sensitive playing. He has performed as a soloist with the Vienna Chamber Orchestra, the Orchestra of St. Luke’s, the Tokyo Philharmonic Orchestra, the Israel Chamber Orchestra, the Danish National Radio Symphony Orchestra, Denmark’s Odense Symphony and the Brooklyn Philharmonic.

As a chamber musician, he has been a regular on the Marlboro Music Festival in Vermont since 2001. Other performances have included a concert at the Finnish Embassy in Washington, where Fiterstein was selected to perform with Arab musicians on a program presented by the Peace Organization Search for Common Ground, and concerts in Daniel Barenboim’s West-Eastern Divan Workshops of Israeli, Palestinian and Arab Instrumentalists. Born in Minsk in the former Soviet Union, Fiterstein emigrated with his family to Israel when he was two years old. After studying at the Israel Arts and Sciences Academy, he attended the Interlochen Arts Academy in Michigan, and the Juilliard School of music.

Shulamit Ran “has never forgotten that a vital essence of composition is communication.” So ran the review in the Chicago Tribune following the premiere of Legends by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. It is hardly surprising, then, that her Symphony, which has drawn references to “the superior quality of her musical imagination and artistic invention” and “a work that will reward each new listening” was awarded the 1991 Pulitzer Prize for Music and the Kennedy Center Friedheim Award in 1992. She has won numerous other major composition awards and her works have been performed by the New York Philharmonic, the Amsterdam Philharmonic, the Jerusalem Orchestra and the Philadelphia Orchestra, among many others; conductors include Zubin Mehta, Gary Bertini, Christoph Von Dohnanyi and Pierre Boulez. Recent honors include a 1998 Koussevitsky Foundation Grant, as well as commissions from the American Composers Orchestra and the Brentano String Quartet. Her works are published by the Theodore Presser Company.

Composer and author Kristine H. Burns is director of the Electronic Music Studios at the Florida International University School of Music in Miami. As the owner and editor of WOW/EM, Women On the Web/ElectronMedia (http://music.dartmouth.edu/~wowem), she has created an award-winning educational Web site for young women interested in creative digital media, as well as science, math, and computers. Burns’ scores and recordings are published and distributed by Tuba-Euphonium Press, Frog Peak Music and Seeland Records. Her book Women and Music in America Since 1900: an encyclopedia (Greenwood, 2002) was “Enthusiastically recommended for large public libraries and music libraries” because “no other source so comprehensively covers American women and music simultaneously.” (Library Journal). The encyclopedia has won numerous awards, including the Library Journal Best Reference Source. 2003; CHOICE: Current Reviews for Academic Libraries, Outstanding Academic Titles, 2003; and Association of Research Colleges and Libraries, “Most Essential Work,” 2002-2003. She is a member of the CMS, ICMA, SEAMUS and IAWM, for which she served as president from 2001-2003. Described as “offbeat,” “humorous” and “striking,” her compositions have been performed throughout the world.

Andrew Kirshner is a composer, performer and media artist. He has received three fellowships from the NEA, numerous commissions and an award from the American Academy of Arts and Letters. He holds a D.M.A. in composition from the University of Michigan where he is an assistant professor in music technology. His works include An Evening with Tony Amore, a musical tragicomedy for jazz orchestra and soloist, and Who It Is, a one man musical about race.

My work had a rebirth in the 1970’s, returning to the freshness of sonority under influences of my practical involvement with traditional folk music. As a source of optimism it never fails!

Edward McGuire

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1948, Edward McGuire studied with James Iliff at the Royal Academy of Music London (1966-70) and then with the Swedish composer Ingvar Lidholm in Stockholm. His works have been regularly broadcast and commissions have come from the Glasgow University McEwan Bequest, the New Music Group of Scotland, the BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra, the St. Magnus Festival and the Edinburgh International Festival. In recent years McGuire has produced several large-scale works to critical acclaim: the ballet score Peter Pan, A Glasgow Symphony, a chamber opera The Loving of Etain, and concerts for guitar, trombone, viola, violin and (most recently) double bass. He has been featured composer at the 1993 Park Lane Series, Purcell Room; 1996 Bath International Guitar Festival; and 1998 International Viola Congress. McGuire performs with and writes for the traditional folk music group Whistlebinkies.

To create music honestly I am a deep listener, to find sound that generates meaning, and then a miner, extracting sound from the world, shaping according to its inherent structure.

Mara Helmuth composes for computer and acoustic instruments, and creates computer music applications for composition and improvisation. She is an associate professor of composition and the director of (cccm)2, the University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music Center for Computer Music. After receiving degrees from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and Columbia University (D.M.A.), she taught at Texas A&M University. Recent work includes an interactive installation in Beijing at the Sino-Nordic Performance Arts Space: an Internet 2 application for improvisation, Soundmesh; and collaborative projects with Allen Orte (Implement of Accretion, a CD available from the Electronic Music Foundation), artist Anna VanMatre and saxophonist Rick VanMatre, and pipa virtuoso Ming Ke.

Music is Music! No matter how many times you listen to it.

Composer/theorist/guitarist Michael Albaugh is the director of music and instructor of composition at the Interlochen Center for the Arts. He holds a bachelor's degree in music education from West Liberty State College, a master's in composition from BGSU and a D.M.A. in composition from West Virginia University. A ProMusica International Grant recipient, Albaugh has also conducted field research in West Africa studying the music and culture of the Ewe people in Kopeyia, Ghana. Former teachers include John Beall, Marilyn Shrude, Burton Beerman and Samuel Adler.

There are still bandwagons, but I prefer my own stick.

Stephen Gryc has always been fascinated by sounds and musical instruments. An intimate understanding of the technique of instruments and the imaginative use of instrumental color are hallmarks of his music. At the Hartt School of the University of Hartford, Gryc teaches traditional orchestration courses, as well as original courses in writing for wind ensembles and for voices. He has received commissions from some of the world's leading soloists including oboist Bert Lucarelli, flutist John Wion, trumpeter Philip Smith and trombonist Joseph Alessi. Gryc holds four degrees in music from the University of Michigan, including a D.M.A., where he studied composition with William Albright, Leslie Bassett and William Bolcom. Gryc's works for large ensembles have been performed by such groups as the United States Marine Band and the Minnesota Orchestra. His music is published by Alphonse Leduc, Boosey and Hawkes, Carl Fischer, Robert King, Virace Press and others and is recorded on the Capstone, Cencuz, Klavier, Opus One and Summit labels. Among his many awards is the 1986 Rudolf Nissim Prize for orchestral music from the ASCAP Foundation.
I embrace music in the spirit of the African and African-American cultural paradigm. It is, in its highest sense, "an expression of life." There is something deeply personal within my music, to which I attempt to bring the best of my craft and my spirit.

Marcus Williams is currently a dual master’s candidate at BGSU, studying composition and trumpet performance. He studied at the University of Akron, graduating summa cum laude with a dual bachelor's degree in composition and trumpet performance. As a composer, Williams has written a wide variety of works and been the recipient of several awards, including first place in the Ohio Federation of Music Clubs Competition in 2002. He was also recognized as the Undergraduate Composition Student of the Year for the 2001 school year at the University of Akron. Williams is active as a trumpet performer, having performed in numerous ensembles including the Bowling Green Philharmonia and Graduate Brass Quintet. He has also appeared as guest trumpet soloist with the Woodmore High School Band and the Port Clinton Community Band, and in many other free-lance solo and ensemble performances.

"I've never been a fan of composers who spout platitudes about their relationship to the natural world or how their music plays with whatever theoretical position is popular that week, so I'm not about to start down that road here; I simply write the kind of music that I find interesting and enjoyable — no strings attached."

Described as "an astonishing experience, the effect of which only becomes clear when it's over" (Loge Magazine, UK), the music of composer, clarinetist and BGSU alumnus Kurt Dolez has been heard across the United States and in Indonesia, including performances by the Cleveland Chamber Symphony, the Pacific Rim Gamelan, the Greater Portland Flute Society (Ore.), Fresh Music (Orlando, Fla.) and the 100th Monkey Ensemble. A frequent collaborator with electronic musician and composer DAC Crowell, his works can be heard on releases from the Edinburgh-based Suislen Recordings. A new CD of compositions for chamber ensemble, recorded by members of the California EAR Unit and other prominent Los Angeles-based performers, is scheduled for future release on the Cold Blue label. A resident of Eugene, Ore., he is currently employed in various capacities by the Oregon Festival of American Music.

Who said new music has to sound the way it does?

Composer and oboist Adam Zygmunt is currently coordinator of operations for the MidAmerican Center for Contemporary Music at BGSU and has also served as director of the Kusuma Sari gamelan at BGSU during the 2001-2002 academic year. He holds bachelor's degrees in music and physics from Truman State University and a master's in composition from BGSU. Zygmunt has studied composition with Burton Beerman, Warren Gooch, Paul Siskind, Peter Terry and Donald M. Wilson, and participated in master classes with Samuel Adler, Robert Morris and Evan Chambers. He has also studied composition for gamelan in Bali, Indonesia, with Dewa Beratha and Dewa Ali. His works have been performed by the Cleveland Chamber Symphony, the BGSU Percussion Ensemble, the Kusuma Sari gamelan and at three Threshold electronic music festivals, held yearly in conjunction with BGSU, Ball State University and Oberlin Conservatory. Zygmunt has also been commissioned twice by the dance department at BGSU, and his works are included on the accompanying CD to The Ciaound Book, edited by Richard Boulagier.

Composer and clarinetist Burton Beerman is the director of the MACCM and founder of the New Music Festival at BGU. The Village Voice has written, "There is a remarkable clarity in the way Burton Beerman carries out the logic of his materials and he has an excellent ear for sound color...The composer displays an acute sensitivity to the differences between live sound and electronic sound and the music contains extraordinary moments when the sound seems to belong to both worlds." His work has been featured on CNN, CNN International, Live with Regis & Kelly and the Eastern European talk show RTL-KLUB Reggeli. He has performed at the week-long Pepsi Sziget Festival at Margit Island in Budapest, Hungary, which annually attracts over 500,000 people, and at the Edinburgh International Festival in Scotland. Beerman has also served in residence at such venues as STEIM Research Center in Amsterdam, Future Music Oregen, LOGOS Tetrahedron Theatre, and neoPHONIA, and has toured throughout Europe for many years with the Hungarian-based dance ensemble Gyula Berger and Friends Dance Theater as music director and clarinetist. His video opera Jesus Daughter was presented at the Walter Reade Gallery in Lincoln Center, at the Museum of Modern Art in New York City and at venues in Switzerland and Italy sponsored by UNESCO-CIRET.

A few years ago, my dad, a Greek immigrant, asked me when I was going to start writing music like the famous Greek new age composer, Yanni. I told him...don't hold your breath...

Elainie Lillios holds a D.M.A. in composition with emphasis in computer music media from the University of North Texas at Denton, where she served as the assistant director of the Center for Experimental Music and Intermedia; bachelor's and two master's degrees from Northern Illinois University; and a M.Phil. from The University of Birmingham in England. She has received commissions from ASCAP/SEAMUS, the International Computer Music Association, La Muse en Circuit, New Adventures in Sound Art and Réseaux, and awards/recognition from CIMESP, Russolo and IMEB (Bourges) among others. Her music has been presented at conferences, concerts and festivals internationally, including guest invitations to the GRM (Paris), Rien à Voir (Montreal), l'espace du son festival (Brussels), June in Buffalo and Sonorities (SARC Centre, Belfast). Lillios' music is available on the Empreinte DIGITAL, StudioPANAROMA, La Muse en Circuit and SEAMUS labels, and is included on the CD accompaniment to New Adventures in Sound Art's The Radio Art Companion.
Pinotage was formed in 1998 and specializes in works written after 1960. Since their first performance this chamber ensemble made up of flute, harp, viola and voice has been working closely with composers, inspiring them to write for this distinctive quartet. They have premiered works by many composers including Robert Lombardo, Marta Ptaszynska, Elizabeth Start and Jan Bach. In 1999 they were in residence at Columbia College offering master classes and performing for young composers. Pinotage has premiered works written for them by members of the American Women Composers organization, and have been regularly featured on the Mostly Music and Music in Small Places series. In June 2000 they recorded a song cycle by New York composer Arnold Rosner for Albany Records. They have performed at DePaul University, Northwestern University, Northern Illinois University, Columbia College and in 2002 appeared on the Jewel Box Series at Northeastern University, broadcast live on WFMT. Following their appearance at the New Music & Art Festival, they will travel to California to present a program at Sacramento’s New Music Festival.

For me, music is always connected with people, events, or ideas. As Jean Cocteau stated: “Good music stirs by its mysterious resemblance to the objects and feelings which motivated it.”

Elizabeth Start holds degrees in mathematics and cello performance from Oberlin College, master’s degrees in cello and theory/composition from Northern Illinois University and a Ph.D. in composition from the University of Chicago. Following the completion of her doctorate, she spent 10 years free-lancing as a professional cellist, composer and teacher in the Chicago area, teaching at institutions including DePaul University, Columbia College and the Elgin Suzuki Academy. She returned to her hometown of Kalamazoo, Mich., in 2001 and plays in the Kalamazoo Symphony while continuing her activities in Illinois with the Elgin Symphony, Symphony 11 and Ravinia Festival Orchestra. In June, Start was named the executive director of the Michigan Festival of Sacred Music. She is also serving as community arts liaison for First Baptist Church of Kalamazoo, as well as teaching cello and composition and conducting the orchestra for the Suzuki Academy of Kalamazoo. As a performer, Start has premiered over 60 works. As a composer working in acoustic, electronic and mixed media, she has received numerous commissions and grants, as well as over 100 performances of over 50 works in the United States and abroad.

Although she took an active part in the postwar European music world in the 1950s and 1960s, Janet Maguire’s entire extant oeuvre has been written within the past 12 years. Maguire, an American composer who has spent most of her adult life in Europe, was totally dissatisfied with her own music until the 1990s, when she felt she had reached that amalgam of compositional characteristics for her personal expression: a style that draws freely from ideas, forms and sounds of European classical music as well as those of Oriental and indigenous musics, creating a unique and personal universe. Born in Chicago, raised in New Rochelle, N.Y., Maguire graduated with a bachelor’s degree in piano from Colorado College. She then studied with René Lebowitz and worked as music critic for the International Herald Tribune in Paris, and attended the Darmstadt Summer Courses for several years, as well. After moving to Venice in 1976, she founded the composers’ association Venetia Musica Nova. Maguire’s music has been heard throughout the United States and Europe, and New World Records has recently issued a CD of her chamber works titled Lace Knots. She is president of the “Musica in divenire” association in Venice and a member of SACEM in France.

I am drawn to musical gestures that express human experience whether emotionally or intellectually. Because of this there is always a struggle against the ordinary and cliché.

The Chicago Sun-Times described Timothy Dwight Edwards’ music as having “a sense of purposeful direction that kept us anxious to hear what would happen next.” His choral, orchestral, chamber and electronic music has been heard primarily in Chicago, New York and New England. Recently resident composer at the Ragdale Foundation, Edwards is Technology Fellow at Columbia College Chicago, where he is creating musicianship software and teaching in both the music and the audio arts and acoustics departments. He holds a doctorate from the University of Chicago and degrees from the University of Massachusetts and Amherst College, and his principal teachers have included Lewis Spratlan, Ralph Shapey, Shulamit Ran and John Eaton. Edwards has taught courses in music theory, history, composition, counterpoint, analysis, ear training, computer music and digital recording theory, and has held teaching positions at the University of Chicago and the University of Illinois at Chicago. He is chair of the Chicago Composers’ Consortium.
I suppose one reason I'm attracted to the process of creating music is because of the ephemeral nature of the moment of performance. Each performance is a unique and fleeting experience involving a kind of fragile intimacy between performer, listener and composer, which exists only for the briefest time and is never exactly the same way twice. That, plus the exhilaration—and pain—of the creative process itself...

Kathleen Ginther's music has been widely performed in Chicago and the Midwest in concerts at the Ravinia Festival, The Art Institute of Chicago, Orchestra Hall Ballroom, Northwestern and DePaul Universities, the Chicago Cultural Center and MoMing Performance Center, among other venues. The recipient of numerous honors and awards, she has recently begun to attract national and international recognition. Her works have appeared on concerts in England, Scotland, Holland, China, Japan and Brazil, and she has been featured live on WFMT and WBEZ in Chicago, as well. A teacher of music theory and composition, Ginther received her doctorate from Northwestern University, master's from DePaul University and bachelor's from the University of Illinois in Chicago. She also studied electronic and computer music at Aspen Music School and participated in advanced composition seminars at Darmstadt, Aspen and Tanglewood. Her music includes solo, chamber, orchestral, electronic and computer works, music for dance and film, and an opera-in-progress. An active member of Chicago's new music scene, Ginther is deeply involved with the performance of music by women composers, and served six terms as president of American Women Composers Midwest. She is also a long-term board member of the Chicago Composers Consortium.

Composition is looking for Beauty, guessing the presence of God and getting in touch with the human soul.

Marco Redaelli, born in 1977 in Italy, studied composition with Giuseppe Colardo at the Conservatorio "G. Verdi" in Milan, attending seminars and master classes with Luca Francescon, Rodion Shchedrin and Marco Stroppa. Redaelli also joined the Agon electronic and musical research centre in Milan. His compositions have been performed in festivals and concert halls, and have been broadcast on the radio. His composition Passages for solo guitar was one of the winning pieces of the 6th Annual Michele Pittaluga International Composition Competition for Classical Guitar and will be soon published by Berbén-Edizioni Musicali. Redaelli also wrote Contemporaneamente, a play that mixes music, images and electronics. He has studied guitar with Simone Fontanelli, Eliot Fisk and Francesco Biraghi, and has won grants and national competitions. At the moment, Redaelli works as a composer and guitarist, performing in concerts and accompanying plays and poetry in Italy and France. He has recently played at the Conservatorio "G. Verdi" in Milan and at the University of Bergamo.

Born in 1966 in Yerevan, Armenia, Vache Sharafyan graduated with distinction from the Yerevan State Conservatory in 1990. In 1992 did postgraduate study in composition with E. Mirzoyan. Sharafyan was a prize winner in the All-Union Composers' Competition in Moscow in 1985, and has been a BMI Composer since 2002. As an official composer for the renowned Silk Road Project since 2001, his compositions The Sun, the Wine and the Wind of Time and The Morning Scent of the Acacia's Song have been performed by World Music Club. His works have been published.

Intrinsically music can say nothing. It is therefore free to say everything.

An ASCAP Serious Music Award winner annually since 1979, West Virginia University Composer-in-Residence John Beall is an active composer with numerous performances around the United States, Europe and Asia; publications with Carl Fischer, MMB Music.

Robert Mueller has been on the faculty at the University of Arkansas since 1988, where he teaches composition and music theory. His music has been performed nationwide by several orchestras including the Cincinnati, Omaha, Lansing, Midland, Arkasas, Missouri Music, Midland, Marquette and North Arkansas Symphonies. Mueller has also had works performed by the International Double Reed Society, the World Saxophone Congress and the College Music Society. He has been commissioned by the Fort Smith Symphony, the North Arkansas Symphony, the Lyrique Quintette, the Chow Brothers duo piano ensemble, Spectrum Trio, James Umbre and the Cleveland Duo, and several University of Arkansas ensembles. His music has been published by Bocal Music Company and C. Alan Publications. Mueller has been the recipient of 14 consecutive ASCAP awards, an American Music Center grant, an individual artist grant from the Arkansas Arts Council and prizes from the Omaha, Lansing, Jackson, Missouri and Cincinnati Symphonies. He holds degrees from the University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music, BGSU and Northern Michigan University. His composition teachers include Marilyn Shrude, Frederic Rzewski, Erste Brown, Joel Hoffman, Allen Sapp, Jonathan Kramet and Darrell Handel.

To me, the most important quality of a composer is simply good taste. She would be able to demonstrate it in any style of composition to make his/her work appropriate to a given event or performer(s).

Wallace De Pue

In Ohio State University High School, Wallace De Pue wrote his first operetta libretto. Later, Capital University accepted him as a student of music composition. At Ohio State University, he completed a Master of Arts degree. He earned his Ph.D. in music composition and theory at Michigan State University under H. Owen Reed. High school vocal music positions in Letonia and Dover, Ohio, provided De Pue with teaching experience. His next position was at the Toledo Museum of Art. In 1966, he joined the faculty of BGSU. Approximately 55 of his works (for nearly all media) have been published. Four of his operas have been produced: Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (recorded by Oceans Records), Something Special (televised several times), and The True Story of the Three Little Pigs (Published by MMB). The Wonderful Witch of Oz is his newest opera. De Pue has won 20 consecutive ASCAP awards for the creation and performances of his music. His works have won awards at both the state and national levels. De Pue is a BGSU professor emeritus and the owner of Picardy Court Publications. His Web site is http://mustec.bgsu.edu/~wallace.

John Anthony Lennon has been commissioned by the John F. Kennedy Theatre Chamber Players, the Library of Congress, the Boston Symphony Chamber Players, the National Endowment for the Arts Orchestral Consortium, the Fromm Foundation and many others. In addition to the Prix de Rome, Guggenheim, Friedheim and Charles Ives Awards, Lennon has been the recipient of numerous prizes, and has held fellowships at Tanglewood, the Rockefeller Center at Bellagio, the Camargo Foundation, Villa Montalvo, Yaddo, the Atlantic Center for the Arts and the MacDowell Colony as a Nordin Foundation Fellow. A professor of composition at Emory University, Lennon resides in Atlanta. Reared in Mill Valley, Calif., Lennon earned a liberal arts degree at the University of San Francisco, and has a master's degree and doctorate from the University of Michigan, where he studied with Leslie Bassett and William Bolcom. Lennon is published by C.F. Peters, E.C. Schirmer, Dom, Ml Bay, Columbia University Press and the Oxford University Press. Recordings are with CRI, Bridge Records, Capstone and Open Loop.

No music is stronger than the poetic tension of a breath.

Frederick Speck is a faculty member at the University of Louisville, where he teaches composition and conducting, and directs the Wind Symphony and New Music Ensemble. He has twice received the President's Award for distinguished scholarship and creativity. Representative performances include the Louisville Orchestra, the Denver Symphony, the Orchestra Society of Philadelphia, Speculum Musicae, Synchronia, the Pittsburgh New Music Ensemble and international venues such as the 2001 Hoxton New Music Days in London and an upcoming premiere at the 2005 WASBE Conference in Singapore. Speck has received awards from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Pennsylvania Council on the Arts, Indiana Arts Commission and the Barlow Endowment. Described as "vivid, driven music" by the New York Times, his Philomel's Refrain was winner of the 1995 Speculum Musicae Competition. Speck earned both bachelor's and master's degrees at BGSU, and a doctorate at the University of Maryland.

Music should make its listeners more acute in perception, more creative in realizing potentials, more adventure-some, alert and independent—more communicative and imaginative in dealing with the realities of life.

Don Freund
At age 28, Chinese composer Huang Ruo is already known on two continents as a promising young composer and scholar. His music has been performed by the Philadelphia Orchestra, American Composers Orchestra, Chicago Pro Musica, Cleveland Chamber Symphony, Nieuw Ensemble (Amsterdam), Dale Warland Singers, Oberlin Chamber orchestra, Guangzhou Symphony Orchestra, Atelier de Musique Contemporain, Asper Contemporary Ensemble, New Juilliard Ensemble, Oberlin Contemporary Music Ensemble, University of Michigan Contemporary Directions Ensemble and International Contemporary Ensemble (ICE), which Huang co-founded the with flutist Claire Chase in 2000. CDs of his works have been released on the Shoreleas Productions, Inc., and AUR labels, and he has a forthcoming Naxos release. Currently he a doctoral candidate at Juilliard, he holds a bachelor's degree from Oberlin and a master's degree from Juilliard. Huang's teachers have included Deng Erbo. Randall Coleman and Christopher Rouse. In his native China, Huang has been awarded many national prizes and has given concerts in numerous different cities. In Switzerland, Huang was awarded the 1995 Henry Mancini Award at the International Film and Music Festival. His work has been spotlighted on NPR, Radio Finland, Radio Sweden, Radio Amsterdam, Radio Canada and Radio China, and presented at noted festivals, conferences and symposia worldwide. Recently, he was invited to give lectures at both the Guangzhou Conservatory of Music in China and the Aspen Composers’ Conference, and to be a visiting composer-in-residence at the University of Georgia. Next April, he will be a visiting composer at Oberlin.

PERFORMERS AND DIRECTORS

Guitarist Matthew Ardzzone has performed throughout the United States and Canada, and was a prize winner in the Stotsenberg and Rautucci International Guitar Competitions. His festival appearances include the Brave New Works Festival (Ann Arbor, Mich.), the Eastman GuitarFest, the Ithaca College Winter Guitar Festival, and the conferences of the National Flute Association and the North American Saxophone Alliance. In addition to being a solo recitalist, he performs in Duo Forza with violinist Moines Pogossian. He has also collaborated with flutist Leone Byuse, tenor Gregory Kunde and Chamber Music Ann Arbor.

Ardizzone's first CD, titled Mazurkas, was recently released on the Aardvark Media label. The disk features mazurkas by 19th- and early 20th-century guitarists, and Ardzzone’s transcriptions of Chopin and Granados. An avid scholar, his work has been published in Soundboard Magazine and by Mel Bay Publications.

His teachers have included Edward Flower, Nicholas Goluses and Peter Clemente. He has played in master classes for Manuel Barrueco, Sergio and Odair Assad and lutenist Paul O’Dette, and has studied in week-long residencies with Eliot Fink (Norfolk Chamber Music Festival) and the Andriaccio-Castellani Duo (Chatauqua Institution). With bachelor’s and master’s degrees in guitar performance from Ithaca College, Ardzzone was the first guitarist to receive a doctorate from the Eastman School of Music, where he was also awarded the prestigious Performer’s Certificate.

As a teacher, he has given master classes at schools throughout the country, including the Cleveland Institute of Music, Eastern Michigan University and Houston Baptist University. He has been on the faculties of Eastman’s Community Education Division, St. John Fisher College and Nazareth College. Ardizzone now resides in Ann Arbor and teaches as part of the adjunct music faculty at BGSU.

Nina Assimakopoulos, assistant professor, is the recipient of numerous awards including two Fulbright Grants, the National Society of Arts and Letters Career award, the Yehudi Menuhin Chamber Music Endowment and the Munich Academy of Music “Meisterklasse” certificate. Career Highlights include performances as principal flute with the Munich City Opera and the Bavarian Radio Symphony Academy Orchestra, as well as international concerts, broadcasts and most recently a solo debut at Carnegie Hall, all of which have won public and critical acclaim. Assimakopoulos is active as a concert soloist, chamber music performer, recording artist and master class workshop facilitator. She has premiered the works of numerous contemporary composers. Her innovative theme-based concert programs enthusiastically reflect her goal of raising the level of enjoyment and understanding of art music among audiences internationally.

Assimakopoulos studied under Peter Lloyd Indiana University; Paul Meisen at the Hochschule für Musik in Munich, Germany; and under Leone Byuse and Doriot Anthony Dwyer as a two time fellow at the Tanglewood Institute. Prior to her BGSU appointment, she was on the faculty at Houghton College in New York.

Boroka Barabas is a native of Târgu Mureș, Romania, where she began studying violin at age seven before becoming a violist. She has won several national competitions for young artists, including first prize in the 1995 and 1996 National Competitions for Viola. Barabas studied with Marius Suraian, a member of the Transylvanian String Quartet, at the Gh. Dima Music Academy in Cluj, Romania. She has performed with the Sonore String Quartet in Romania and other countries in Western Europe, the Târgu Mureș Philharmonic Orchestra, and has also played in several youth orchestras, including the Bach Academy in Stuttgart, Germany; Orchestra Simfonica Internazionale d’Italia; and the National Youth Orchestra of the Netherlands. Barabas is currently a master’s candidate at BGSU.

Cynthia Benson, assistant professor and coordinator of group piano at BGSU, holds a bachelor’s in music education from the University of Central Arkansas, a master’s in piano performance from Rice University and a doctorate in music education with an emphasis in piano pedagogy from the University of Texas at Austin. She is a member of the Research Committee of the National Conference on Keyboard Pedagogy and has presented research at the First Seminar on Digital Music Education in Nanning, China, and international conferences of the International Society for Music Education. She has also presented research at the national and state conferences of the Music Educators National Conference. Presently serving on the national advisory board for MTNA student chapters and co-chair of the Research Poster Sessions, she has participated in presentations at the organization’s national and state conferences. Her articles have appeared in Journal of Technology in Music Learning, Texas Music Education Research, Illinois Music Educator, American Music Teacher, Keyboard Companion, Piano Pedagogy Forum and Roland’s Keyboard Educator.

John Bentley received his doctorate from the University of Michigan and also holds degrees from the University of Alabama and the Peabody/Vanderbilt Institute. A former student of Florian Mueller, Robert Bloom and Lawrence Morgan, he has performed with the Toledo, Knoxville, Memphis and Nashville Symphonies, as well as the Yale Summer Festival Orchestra. He has also taught at colleges and universities in Iowa, Michigan and Tennessee and at the Interlochen Arts Camp. Currently, he serves as the Ohio chairman for the National Association of College Wind and Percussion Instructors. The coordinator of the woodwind faculty and professor of oboe at the College, he is a member of the resident faculty ensemble, Venti da Camera.

Since completing apprenticeships with the Santa Fe Opera and the Chicago Lyric Opera, mezzo-soprano Julia Bentley has appeared in leading roles with opera companies throughout the country, and has been featured as a soloist with orchestras led by George Manahan, Raymond Leppard, Oliver Knussen, Robert Shaw and Pierre Boulez. She performs in Chicago with Mostly Music, CUBE, the Contemporary Chamber Players, the Orion Ensemble, Pinotage, Ensemble Noa Messia, Fulcrum Point, the Chicago Chamber Musicians, Chicago Opera Theater, Concertante di Chicago, Music of the Baroque, the Lyric Opera of Chicago, the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and the MusicNOW series at Symphony Center with conductor Cliff Colnot. Bentley has been a regular guest artist with the Chicago Chamber Musicians’ Music at the Millennium series, most recently in works by Berio, Carter and Boulez, under the direction of Boulez. In 2001 she appeared to critical acclaim at Carnegie Hall, also with Boulez, as the soloist in Le Marteau Sans Maitre. She has recorded on the Albany, Cedille and Tingtale labels. Recent engagements have included performances of the Mosaios with the Apollo Chorus at Orchestra Hall, and appearances with the Ars Viva Orchestra and the Bach and Handel Week Festivals, as well as chamber music series in Chicago, Philadelphia, New York and the National Holocaust Museum in Washington, D.C. This season she will sing La Cerereinata for Sacramento Opera, Meg in Little Women for Dayton Opera, and Time Cycle by Lukas Foss during the composer’s Chicago residency.
Emily Fraeman Brown, director of orchestral activities and music director of opera theater at BG SU, was the first woman to receive a doctorate in orchestral conducting at Eastman. She has appeared as a conductor with orchestras in the United States, Europe and South America, including the Rochester Philharmonic; the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra; the Dayton Philharmonic; the Cincinnati Chamber and Chicago Civic Orchestras; the Eastman Virtuosi; the Ashland, Dearborn, Plymouth, Sioux City, Syracuse and Toledo Symphony Orchestras; the Sibiu Philharmonic in Romania; the Harris and Eastman Schools of Music; the University of Michigan and Southern Methodist University; and at the American Festival of the Arts, the Skaneateles Music Festival, the Interlochen Arts Camp; the Chautauqua Institution; and the All-State Orchestras of Ohio, Missouri and Washington. She has recorded for Opus One Records and, with the Bowling Green Philharmonia, on the Albany Records label.

From 1987-1989, she served as associate conductor of the Eastman Philharmonia and conductor of the Eastman Opera Theater. A published author, Brown's articles have appeared in such journals as the Bach Journal, the Journal of the Conductors Guild and Musica Judaica.

A number of her conducting students have successfully participated in international conducting competitions and master classes and gone on to doctoral programs or to positions with orchestras or universities.

Joseph A. Cardenas holds bachelor's and master's degrees in film production from Ohio State University. He has 20 years of experience in video and film production as a lighting director, and has also served as camera operator and director of photography in news, documentary and narrative productions. Cardenas has received Crystal and Telley awards, and is a four-time Emmy nominee. Currently he is an instructor at BG SU in the Department of Telecommunications, where he teaches video production, and in the Department of Theatre and Film, where he teaches cinematography and introduction to film.

Flautist Jennifer Clippet recently completed her doctorate at Northwestern University, where she studied with Walfrid Kujala. She is the winner of several competitions including the 2001 Musicians Club of Women Award and the 2000 Flute Talk Competition. Most recently her chamber group Quintet Attacca won both the senior wind division and the grand prize at the 2002 Fischoff National Chamber Music Festival. Quintet Attacca was also invited as a finalist for the 2002 Lincoln Center Two Chamber Music Series Competition. Clippet has been a finalist and prize winner in several competitions including the Flute Talk, National Flute Association Young Artist, Piccolo and Performers Master Class, and the Wisconsin Public Radio Young Artist competitions. She played with the Civic Orchestra of Chicago from 1996-1998 where she received regular coaching with Donald Peck. Clippet free-lances regularly with several Chicago-area groups including the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Chicago Chamber Musicians, Grant Park Orchestra, the Chicago Symphony’s MusicNow series and the Chicago Opera Theater. She also maintains a large teaching studio at both Maine West and Stevenson High Schools. Clippet received her bachelor’s degree from the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee and her master’s from Northwestern University.

Stijn De Cock graduated with honors from the Royal Conservatory of Music in Brussels, where he studied with Eugene Mogilevsky and where he had been admitted at only age 15. Previously, De Cock had won the Prix des Jeunes piano competition in Verviers, Belgium, and had performed recitals at the Haverford International Youth Festival in Philadelphia. Earlier this year, he won first prize in the Lions Club music competition in Flanders, Belgium. He currently studies with Maxim Mogilevsky at BG SU.

Elizabeth DeMio is an associate faculty member of the Cleveland Institute of Music, where she earned her bachelor’s degree and her principal teachers were James Tannenbaum and Vitya Vronsky. She received her master’s degree from the University of Michigan as a student of Theodore Lettvin. DeMio made her solo orchestra debut with the Orquestra Sinfonica de Veracruz in 1982, and a career of solo appearances and collaborative chamber music endeavors followed. During the summer, she is on the collaborative piano staff at the Encore School of Strings in Hudson, Ohio.

Jason De Pue, a member of the first violin section of the Philadelphia Orchestra, is also a currently a faculty member at the Boyer College of Music and Dance, and has served as concertmaster of the Curtis Orchestra. He has participated in the La Jolla, Verbiest, Ravinia, Chautauqua, Saratoga, Jerusalem Music Encounters and Kingston Music Festivals, and has attended the Isaac Stern Chamber Music workshop, as well.

Heather Elliott-Famularo, assistant professor of digital arts at BG SU, holds a master’s degree in art and technology from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago and a bachelor’s in art media studies-computer graphics from Syracuse University. Current research interests include digital video-enhanced interactive installation art, and performance that explores the interaction between the viewer and the works of art. Emphasis is placed on the merging of technology and art to create ubiquitous transformational environments. As a digital conceptual performance artist and a feminist, she coaxes participants of her artwork to question the traditional methods of viewing art and reevaluate their roles as “viewers” by making an audience aware of its own gaze. She exploits the conventions and language of mainstream moving imagery and theater, thereby giving power to the “persona’’ she’s created and herself as the artist, while simultaneously removing the control innately found in the privileged male vision.

During the past few years, Elliott-Famularo has exhibited her work in many national art shows. Recent shows include installations in the “Home Work/s” and “Social Seduction” exhibitions at the Betty Rymer Gallery in Chicago, and a video piece selected for the Videomnitor-PopTV festival at the Centro per l’Arte Contemporanea Luigi Pecci in Prato, Italy. She also is the SIGGRAPH 2004 emerging technologies chair, where she organized and designed a show of ground-breaking technology and fine art.

Hungarian-born Csaba Erdélyi wrote a new page in music history when in 1972 he won London’s prestigious Carl Flesch Violin Competition on the violin—the first, and to date, the only violinist to do so. The Flesch Prize launched his international career, and in that same year he was invited by Joseph Szegedi and Rudolf Serkin to the Marlboro festival, where he also worked with the renowned Pablo Casals. A student of Pál Lukács, and subsequently Yehudi Menuhin and Bruno Giuranna, Erdélyi became Menuhin’s partner in concertos and chamber music, performing in many European countries. Menuhin wrote of him to composer Benjamin Britten: “Erdélyi is an invaluable link between the two great musical cultures of Eastern and Western Europe.” Erdélyi has collaborated in concerts and recordings with such artists as Maurice Gendron, Franco Gulli, Yo-Yo Ma, George Malcolm, Jessye Norman and András Schiff. He was the viola soloist in the film score of Amadeus with Sir Neville Marriner conducting the Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, and as a soloist, has recorded for Decca, Hungaroton, Lyrita, Nimbus and Philips records. Concerto appearances include those with leading British orchestras on the BBC Promenade Concerts (the “Proms”) and in the Royal Festival Hall, as well as major international music festivals, with Rudolf Barshai, Sir Colin Davis, Andrew Davis, Raymond Leppard, Riccardo Muti and Kurt Sandeferding conducting. He served as principal viola of the Philharmonia Orchestra of London from 1974 to 1978, and was guest principal violist of the BBC Symphony Orchestra.
Emily Hardin received her bachelor’s degree in piano performance from James Madison University, where she studied with Eric Ruple and Gabriel Dobner. She is currently a master’s candidate in collaborative piano performance at BGSU in the studio of Robert Satterlee. This past summer, Hardin studied German art song with Harold Heiberg and James Douglass at the American Institute of Musical Studies (AIMS) in Austria. She has also participated in master classes with Leon Bates, Charles Fischer and Gustavo Romero.

Celesta Haraszi began her dance training in Budapest, Hungary, and later received her master of fine arts in dance/choreography from the University of Utah. She has been acknowledged as “one of the leading soloists of the avant-garde dance world” by such sources as the Village Voice and the Cleveland Plain Dealer. A collaborator with many internationally known composers and directors of multimedia productions, she has performed and created over 40 works. Haraszi served as solo dancer with the European-based dance company Gyuyla Berger and Friends for seven years, performing throughout Eastern and Western Europe. According to the Atlanta Journal “Haraszi has a uniquely individual virtuosic style that combines the strength of an athlete with the grace of ballet and is noted for her dramatic ability to establish a perfect equilibrium between the rival magnetism of music and dance.” John Cage described her performance of Burton Beerman’s Night Calls for clarinet, solo dancer and tape as a “tour de force...beautifully executed.” Her master teachers have included Alwin Nikolais, Bill T. Jones and Murray Louis and she has studied extensively with Viola Farber, Bill Evans, Gus Solomon’s and John Wilson.

David Harnish is associate professor of ethnomusicology, director of Balinese gamelan Kusuma Sari at BGSU, and holds graduate degrees in ethnomusicology from UCLA (doctorate) and University of Hawai'i (Master’s). His research specialization is the music of Indonesia (Bali, Lombok, and Java), and he has also studied in Japan and India and is currently researching Latino music culture in northwest Ohio. He has received many grants—including Fullbright-Hays awards, a National Endowment for the Humanities award, and National Foundation grant—and has served as consultant for National Geographic, the BBC, and the Smithsonian Institute. His research has been published in national and international journals, books, and encyclopedias; he has a book in press; and he has recorded Indonesian and jazz performances with four different labels.

Jeff Heisler is pursuing a master’s degree in saxophone performance from BGSU, where he studies saxophone with Distinguished Research/Artist Professor John Sampen. Heiser is currently a band graduate teaching assistant and works with the Athletic, Concert, University and Falcon Marching Bands. He holds a bachelor’s degree in music education from Central Michigan University, where he studied saxophone with John Nichol. Heiser is a member of the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra and has performed with the Benny Goodman Orchestra, John Philip Sousa Band, Midland Symphony Orchestra and the Stuttgart Ballroom Band. To promote new music for the saxophone, he has commissioned and premiered works such as “Dark Blue” Saxophone Concerto by Robert D. Ash and Dance the Event Horizon by Randall Carnesdale. No stranger to competition success, Heisler has won the Downbeat Magazine “Outstanding Collegiate Classical Soloist” Competition (2002), Patricia Nixon Memorial Woodwind Competition (2002), Jack Saunders Jazz Award (2002), CMU Concerto Competition (2002) and the MTNA (Michigan) Collegiate Solo Competition (2002). As member of the Quantum Saxophone Quartet, he has won the MTNA (Michigan) Collegiate Chamber Ensemble Competition (2001 and 2002) and was a semi-finalist at the Fischoff National Chamber Music Competition (2000 and 2001).

Kathryn Humphrey was a former guest collaborator with the New Music Festival back in the early 80’s. She has danced with the Omega Dance Company, the Paul Winter Consort, Marilyn Danitz and the High Frequency Wavelengths Dance Company, and has also danced under the direction of former Pilobolus dancer Martha Clark, who choreographed David Lynch’s Industrial Symphony #1. Additionally, she has collaborated with many performance artists in the LES Arts community on multimedia works. While in Paris, she worked with Paris Power Express and choreographed for a pop singer named “Dazz.” Since returning to Bowling Green, she has choreographed the last nine BGSU summer musicals.

Anton Jessberger was born in Bryan, Ohio, in 1975 and studied film, video and sound design at BGSU while working for the local PBS affiliate, WBGU. Upon graduation, he pursued a career in multimedia, producing corporate, industrial and commercial videos for the Findlay-based company Aardvark Inc. He currently works with Independent Films as a free-lance visual and sound producer in northern Ohio, where he also performs as an electroacoustic composer and performer at clubs and festivals with bands and as a solo artist. Jessberger creates his own computer-based instruments in addition to building and modifying audio equipment. He is most often seen performing with an array of buttons, knobs, sliders and switches in addition to keyboard based instruments. Screens with his visual compositions often accompany his concerts, and he often works with other artists by writing music or creating video narratives and art.

Randolph Kelly has enjoyed a distinguished and multifaceted career as principal violist of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. He was hired by André Previn in 1976, and has since played under the direction of Lorin Maazel and Mariss Jansons. Previn once wrote that Kelly “...transformed his section into what I believe is the best viola section of any orchestra in America.” One highlight of Kelly’s tenure with the Pittsburgh Symphony was performing the world premiere of a viola concerto written for him by Samuel Adler.

Kelly’s performs extensively as a soloist and chamber musician. In addition to performances as a guest artist at chamber music festivals worldwide, he has recorded and toured extensively with the Los Angeles Piano Quartet. In reviewing a performance of theirs, the German press Passauer Neue stated, “Randolph Kelly is in a class of his own. He has a richness of tone such as one seldom hears...” As a soloist, Kelly has appeared on some of the most prestigious concert stages in the world. He performed the New York premiere of Sir Michael Tippett’s Triple Concerto in Carnegie Hall, and made his European solo debut when Lorin Maazel invited him to play the Walton Concerto with the National Orchestra of France. The review in The Oregonian of Kelly’s performance of the Bartok Viola Concerto with the Oregon Symphony stated, “...guest soloist Randolph Kelly provided the evening’s highlight...it was a breathtaking performance.”

In addition to his rigorous performing schedule, Kelly has recorded a wide range of music for the Albany, Naxos and Music Masters labels. He also appeared on national television, performing Don Quixote as part of the series Previn and the Pittsburgh. Kelly is a graduate of the Curtis Institute, where he worked closely with Joseph DePasquale. He is committed to performing new music, and he volunteers his time to educational programs in an effort to bring a wide range of musical experiences to young audiences.

Penny Thompson Kruse, assistant professor, has performed extensively as a soloist, orchestral and chamber musician. For five seasons she was a member of the Kansas City Symphony, serving as associate concertmaster during the 1989-90 season. As first violinist of the Escher Quartet, she was an artist-in-residence at Music at Penn’s Woods at Pennsylvania State University. Kruse has appeared as soloist with several orchestras in the Midwest, including the Kansas City Camerata, Kansas City Chamber Orchestra, Independence Symphony, Liberty Symphony, Lima Symphony, Northland Symphony, Overland Park Orchestra, Philharmonia of Kansas City and the Hutchinson Chamber Orchestra. Prior to her BGSU appointment, Kruse was on the faculty of William Jewell College. She has performed in many summer music festivals, including the Colorado, Peninsula, Spoleto and Grand Teton. As a member of the International Women’s String Quartet, she performed at the 2002 National Women’s Day in Hanoi, Vietnam, as well as presented master classes and recitals in Taiwan, Taiwan and Hanoi. Kruse has also performed at a number of state and national conferences including the 2003 International Viola Congress in Germany. Currently, she serves as assistant principal second violin at Eastern Music Festival. An active adjudicator, she received her training at Northwestern and Yale Universities and earned a D.M.A. in violin performance from the University of Missouri at Kansas City. Her performance of Chen Yi’s Chinese Folk Dance Suite, with the Bowling Green Philharmonia, is scheduled for release in fall 2004 on the Albany Records label.

Harpist Courtney Lawhn holds a master’s degree from the Chicago College of Performing Arts, where she studied with principal Chicago Symphony Orchestra harpist Sarah Bullen, and a bachelor’s degree from Northwestern University, where she was a Helen L. Teich Fellow and studied with the Chicago Lyric Opera’s principal harpist, Elizabeth Cifani. During her tenure at Northwestern, she won its concerto competition and was the first harpist to do so since her teacher more than 30 years earlier. She has also trained as an orchestral and chamber musician at the Aspen Music Festival, where her teachers included New York Philharmonic principal harpist Nancy Allen, and at the Spoleto Festival USA under the baton of Emanuel Villaume.

In addition to performing with many of the Chicago area’s free-lance orchestras, Lawhn is the principal harpist with the Illinois Symphony Orchestra, the Des Moines Opera and the Peoria Symphony Orchestra, and she has also served as principal harpist with the Civic Orchestra of Chicago, the training orchestra of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. She has performed with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and the Chicago Lyric Opera, and recent concerto soloist appearances include the Lincolnwood Chamber Orchestra and the Illinois Symphony Orchestra. An avid chamber music recitalist, Lawhn has collaborated with many distinguished performers, including Chicago Symphony Orchestra members and the Chicago MusicNOW Ensemble, with whom she appears on the world premiere recording of Augusta Read Thomas’ In My Sky at Twilight, conducted by Pierre Boulez.

Claudia Lasareff-Mironoff was the principal violist of the Chicago Sinfonietta (1989-1992) and the Cape Town Symphony Orchestra in South Africa (1992-1996).
