It isn’t often that a group of employers will gather for several hours in a purposeful effort to meet you and other job seekers. So when a job fair is held in your area, it’s a good idea for you to attend. In order to obtain something from the experience, you need to understand what you should do before, during and after the job -- and then follow up. Your small investment of time and effort -- before, during and after -- might very well turn into an opportunity you wouldn’t have otherwise had.

BEFORE

1. Develop a Strong Resume: Highlight your skills and accomplishments. Your resume should be error-free and concise. Don’t forget to make several copies, since you’ll probably visit with more than one employer.

2. Research the Organizations: Attending the Fair: Pick up a Summer Job Fair Guide located in various paper stands throughout campus or visit WorkNet at www.bgsu.edu/stuemp or MyBGSU and make a list of the employers you plan on visiting at the fair. Nothing impresses an employer less than a prospective candidate asking, “So what do you guys do?” The more informed you are, the more likely you will be positively remembered.

3. Develop a 30-Second Commercial: “Tell me a little about yourself.”

You’re likely to get that invitation from many of the employers at the fair. So spend a little time beforehand figuring out your response. Think of your reply as a 30-second, self-promotional commercial you’ll deliver to each employer who asks. See page 5 for help with developing a 30-second commercial.

DURING

1. Introduce Yourself and Shake Hands: In many ways, a job fair is a test of your social skills. While employers are almost always friendly and outgoing, they’ll expect the same of you. If you need help with your introduction, practice in advance with a friend.

2. Dress Appropriately: In most cases, you’ll want to dress professionally to attend a job fair. At the Summer Job Fair, business casual is fine, but don’t go too casual. When in doubt, overdress.

3. Ask Intelligent Questions: If you’ve researched the organization, you’ll probably have some questions you’d like to ask. Not only will you get some answers, but you’ll also show yourself to be someone who does their research.

4. Focus on What You Can Offer: You’ll be a refreshing change to most company representatives if you tell them what you can do for them and their organizations instead of asking what they can do for you.

5. Leave Your Resume with Each Representative: Then be sure to grab each representative’s card.

AFTER

1. Take Notes: After the fair concludes, jot down notes about conversations you had with company representatives. If you wait too long, the conversations will start running together in your head, and you’ll forget what you said to whom.

2. Send Thank-You Notes: Write or email each of the people you met and thank them for their time. Reiterate your interest in the company and your relevant skills and experience. Most job seekers fail to take this simple step, often losing out in the end to those who did express their thanks.

ACCESS JOB POSTINGS USING WORKNET

Access the Student Employment Services homepage at www.bgsu.edu/stuemp. Enter your MyBGSU username and password in the gray box with the WorkNet logo. Choose “student” in the Affiliation field. Click Log-in.

When the WorkNet page opens, look at the right navigation bar under “Getting Started” and click on the Personal and Academic profiles to add and update your personal and academic information.

After you’ve set up your profile, look under “Find a Job/Internship.” WorkNet contains different categories of job postings; On-Campus Regular & Work Study, Off-Campus Part-Time/Seasonal, Internships & Co-ops and Careers. Click on the category of your interest.

For Work Study positions you must be eligible for the Federal Work Study program through Student Financial Aid.

After clicking on the category you are searching, a list of job postings will appear. For more information about a specific job click on the job title. A new window will open with all of the details pertaining to the job and how to apply.

To create a saved search click on the “Advanced Search” tab. Follow the directions listed on the screen. The saved search will enable you to receive an email message when a job that meets your search criteria is posted.

WHAT SHOULD YOU WEAR TO THE SUMMER JOB FAIR?

In a job market where multiple candidates are competing to get the interview that gets the job, being noticed for the wrong reason is a bad thing. How you present yourself can make a great first impression, or may lose your potential employer's interest before you can say "Hello". So, what should you wear?

Although the Summer Job Fair will have a more casual atmosphere than other fairs at BGSU, you should consider the type of employment you are seeking when deciding what to wear. While summer camp jobs do not require suits and ties, candidates for full-time career positions should dress more formally. Business casual is acceptable for some internships and co-ops; when in doubt, dress "up" rather than "down". Your goal should be to create a positive and professional image for the employer you want to impress.

SOME GUIDELINES APPLY TO ALL JOB-SEEKERS AT ALL TIMES. FOR BOTH WOMEN AND MEN:

1. Good hygiene and a neat appearance is essential. Clean teeth and fresh breath is a must. Fragrance (cologne, aftershave, perfume) should be used minimally.
2. Clothing should fit; too tight, too short, too high, or too low will convey the wrong message about your ability to present yourself as a professional. All garments should be neat, clean, and with as few wrinkles as possible.
3. Don't chew gum. And if you are a smoker, eliminate all traces of smoke prior to the job fair or interview.

WHEN POSSIBLE, CHOOSE FORMAL BUSINESS ATTIRE FOR POST-GRADUATE, CO-OPS, AND INTERNSHIPS:

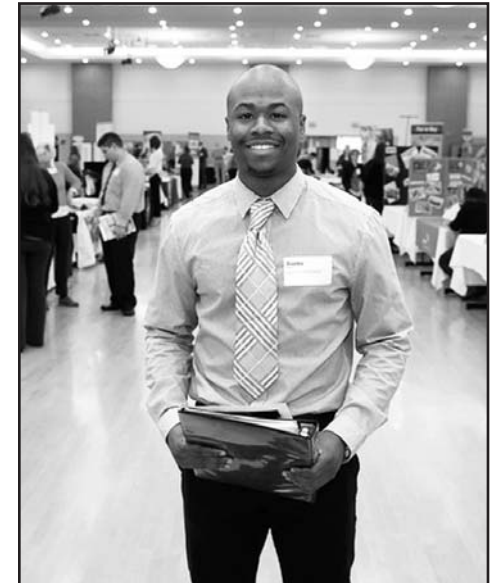

For men, this includes conservative two-piece business suits in blue, brown or grey with a properly knotted tie in a coordinating color. A small pattern or small print tie is fine. Dark belt, socks and shoes should coordinate with the suit colors. The shoes should be well polished leather tie or slip-on dress shoes.

For women, a two-piece business suit (skirt or pants) in a solid conservative color is the safest choice. A simple dress with a business jacket is another option. Skirts should be no more than two inches above the knee.

FOR PART-TIME AND SEASONAL POSITIONS, CHOOSE BUSINESS CASUAL:

For men, a combination of collared shirt (such as a dress shirt or polo shirt), trousers (such as khakis or blue, green, brown, or black) with a belt, and modest shoes (such as loafers) with socks is generally acceptable. A blazer or sweater can be added.

For women, a reasonable length skirt (not mini-skirt) or full-length trousers of a non-jeans material combined with a top (such as a dress shirt, polo, or sweater set) is considered acceptable. An informal dress with appropriate skirt length is also acceptable.

WHEN IN DOUBT, CHOOSE THE LOOK THAT BEST PROJECTS THAT YOU'RE SERIOUS ABOUT GETTING THE JOB.

Remember, in the end, a friendly smile, good manners, and confidence are the very best accessories in any environment.

CREATE YOUR ONE-MINUTE COMMERCIAL: BE PREPARED TO INTRODUCE YOURSELF TO EMPLOYERS

Your success as a job seeker will rely heavily on the initial impression you give employers. To improve your chances of making a favorable impression, practice delivering a one-minute commercial about yourself and the contributions you could make to an organization. When meeting a candidate, employers want to know the candidate's major, GPA, year in school, career interests and goals, unique qualifications, and relevant experiences (e.g., prior work experience, internships, leadership, and co-curricular activities).

The following format will help you develop a one-minute commercial suitable for use at the Summer Job Fair and other career fairs:

- Introduce yourself by first and last names, major, and class standing (e.g., senior).
- Briefly share your knowledge about the organization, field, or industry.
- Explain what you can offer by highlighting your relevant skills and strengths.
- Express your interest in learning more about the organization by asking a direct question or by requesting an interview.

EXAMPLE OF A ONE-MINUTE COMMERCIAL

Hello, my name is Jackie Daniels, and I am a sophomore Business Administration major. I have been looking forward to speaking with you today. I noticed your summer job posting on BGSU's WorkNet. I'm familiar with the excellent work you do at United Way, and I am excited to have the opportunity to stop by and talk with you.

I've done volunteer work during my entire college and high school career. I've been a Big Sister with the organization Big Brothers/Big Sisters for the past three years. I also had the opportunity to gain project management skills through coordinating a food drive for my sorority where we collected 300 pounds of food to give to a local food pantry. To accomplish this I created a marketing plan to get the word out and I collaborated with other organizations on campus. Overall, the food drive was a success, and I am looking forward to my next service project.

After reviewing your website, I noticed that you are actively involved adult literacy. I was excited to read about your three-year Community Impact Plan. The document addresses the need to investigate the serious problems that devastate people's lives and threaten the welfare of the local community. How will your new hires be involved with the plan?

BACK TO THE BASICS: RESUMES AND COVER LETTERS

POLISH YOUR RESUME

It is not uncommon for an organization to receive hundreds of resumes for one position. How can your resume stand out from the rest? It should clearly demonstrate that you meet and exceed the qualifications for the position. Customize your resume for a specific position by updating it with the most relevant experiences and skills. You can use the job description to help guide your writing by making sure to indicate that you have all the required and preferred qualifications.

WRITE TARGETED COVER LETTERS

An employer can detect a generic cover letter a mile away. So, why do people send the same cover letter to every organization to which they apply? A well-crafted, targeted cover letter is designed to illustrate your knowledge of the organization, the efforts to which you will go to understand the organization, and how your strengths align with the organization's structure and needs. After researching an organization, use the information to write a targeted cover letter that will clearly demonstrate how you meet the qualifications for the position. This will entice the employer to review your resume and invite you to interview for the position.

OBJECTIVE

Please note-objectives are optional, but if you do include one be sure to highlight the type of position you are seeking (e.g., internship or full-time) and provide a brief summary of skills. See example below:

To obtain a _____ in the field of _____ using my skills in _____, _____, and _____.

EDUCATION

Identify the name of the university, with the city and state; you do not need to include high school information. Write out full name of your degree and include any specializations and/or minors. Include any study abroad or service-learning experiences. See example below.

Bowling Green State University (BGSU), Bowling Green, OH
Bachelor of Science in Technology, Visual Communication Technology
Expected Graduation Date: May 2016

If you do not have an internship or co-op yet, consider adding a subsection for Related Course Projects and highlight relevant skills and knowledge gained through these experiences. See example below:

Interactive Media Plan for "Toledo Museum of Art"; Toledo, OH

- Collaborated with classmates to develop interactive exhibits for patrons of the museum
- Researched color, type, and movement that would increase target audience

EXPERIENCE

Identify the name of the organization, location (city/state), your title, and dates of employment for each of your experiences. Be sure to list the most recent experience first, followed by the least recent experience. Highlight accomplishments and transferable skills-abilities acquired or used in previous experiences that could be applicable to the position, such as public speaking, writing, leadership, budgeting, and problem solving. Review the example below.

Visual Communications Intern, BGSU Athletics, Bowling Green, OH September 2015 – December 2015

- Developed and maintained various pages of the BGSU Athletics web site
- Designed and executed promotional advertisements including brochures, web banners, videos, splash pages, and scoreboard slides
- Co-managed social media marketing of BGSU Athletics Facebook and Twitter

Consider breaking your experience into different sections, such as Relevant Experience, Additional Work Experience, Leadership Experience, etc.

ACTIVITIES

List the official name of each organization, any leadership roles, and the dates of involvement (month/year-month/year OR semester/year-semester/year). Highlight key accomplishments and transferable skills from these experiences. See below.

Member, Phi Sigma Pi National Honor Fraternity
Videographer, BG on TV
Volunteer, Relay For Life

January 2013-Present
September 2013-Present
April 2014-Present

HONORS/AWARDS

Write the official name for each honor or award and the date received. Consider summarizing scholarships (e.g., Received 3 academic, 2 leadership, and 1 service learning). Also consider incorporating honors/awards in other sections (e.g., Education-Dean's List, Work Experience, Employee of the Month, etc.).

SKILLS

This section is optional, but you can enhance your resume by listing your computer skills (e.g., Microsoft Word, Excel, PowerPoint; Adobe Photoshop and Illustrator; social media, etc.), industry/field-related skills (e.g., DSLR camera, AP writing style, iMovie, market research, etc.), and/or language skills (e.g., Fluent in Mandarin Chinese, Conversant in French, Basic French).

NOTE – Make sure your resume is concise. If it does go onto a second page, be sure to include your name and page number at the top of the page.

SUMMER BREAK: MAKE IT “WORK” FOR YOU

Summer jobs are also excellent opportunities for developing “transferable skills” – abilities that can be useful in any occupation, regardless of the type of work. Time management, working well independently, as part of a team, and attention to detail are examples of transferable skills that are valued highly by employers.

It may be hard to believe, but spring semester will be over before you know it. With a bit of planning, you can use summer to gain valuable skills and experience to help you make progress in meeting your career goals. If your degree requires an internship or co-op experience, summer is a great time to get related experience that can be included in your academic transcript. Even if your major doesn’t require an internship or co-op, working at a job that’s related to your major or career is the best possible kind of experience!

EVALUATE YOUR PERSONAL PREFERENCES.

By answering a few questions, you can help identify options for making the most of your summer.

- How much time can you dedicate to a job, given your other summer obligations?
- If you plan to take classes in Bowling Green this summer, are there on-campus jobs or jobs in the community where you can get experience related to your major? Can you work full-time and take an online course?
- Are you willing to relocate for the summer, if the right opportunity is available?
- What would you like to learn in a work experience that you can’t learn in the classroom?
- What skills do you want to develop?
- What kind of work environment do you prefer?
- What types of work assignments/ environments are most rewarding to you?

SUMMER CAMP JOBS: WHY WORK AT A CAMP?

DOES THIS DESCRIBE YOU OR SOMEONE YOU KNOW?

You love the outdoors. You love hiking and biking and sailing. Your good friend says you’re great with kids.

If you relate to this, then there’s the perfect place waiting for you: summer camp. Over half a million college students will find their way from their campuses to camps this summer to fill openings at a variety of themed camps for children of all ages across the United States.

Consider this:

- Live, play, and work in the great outdoors.
- Go on adventures and learn to do new things.
- Experience other parts of the country.
- Make new friends from all over – even from other countries.
- Bank more money than you think – with few expenses.
- Become a child’s hero.
- Be a leader.

Camp jobs offer valuable skill-building, leadership, training, and enrichment opportunities found nowhere else. Regardless of your college major, camp experiences allow you to learn and develop skills that will enhance your job marketability. Camps for students with special needs, specific educational and career interest, and talents return to BGSU to recruit at the Summer Job Fair. The benefits go far beyond a paycheck. Business executives often note that experience as a camp counselor translates into excellent management and personnel skills. To learn more, visit the camp representatives attending the BGSU Summer Job Fair. For additional camp opportunities, visit <http://www.acacamps.org/jobs/>.

Understanding your work preferences and career objectives can help you identify experiences that will help you reach your career goals.

PLAN YOUR SEARCH.

Make an appointment with a Student Employment Services staff member to jump-start your job search. Create a system for tracking your searches. Note to whom you apply, application date, your employer contacts, and follow-up actions. Update your WorkNet account (in MyBGSU) and create and save a search for opportunities that meet your objectives or to identify employers seeking students with your major. Pace yourself – if you start now, and work systematically, you won’t feel nearly as pressured as if you try to do everything on short notice. Planning for summer now will put you ahead of others who wait.

USE ALL THE RESOURCES AVAILABLE TO YOU.

Attend the Summer Job Fair on March 16, from 11:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. at the Bowen-Thompson Student Union to identify summer employment options. Consult with faculty in your field of study—ask where their current and former students have interned or completed co-ops.

WORK YOUR PLAN.

Once you’ve determined your goals for the summer, identified your personal preferences, done your research, and secured your summer job, internship, or co-op, you’re ready to focus on implementing your plan by maximizing your on-the-job learning.

Regardless of where you work or the type of work you do this summer, do your best!

Investigate whether or not your summer work experience qualifies as a co-op or internship by consulting with your academic department, college, or the Career Center. You may be eligible for internship/co-op credit or a free COOP 50 notation on your BGSU transcript.

Keep a journal of the work skills you use or develop during the course of the summer. Did you lead a team? Work on a special project? Develop a new way of processing inquiries? Did you receive special training, consideration, or recognition?

Ask for feedback from your supervisor and use it to build expertise and identify areas for improvement, or additional learning.

Think about what knowledge, skills, and abilities you learned or developed this summer, incorporate them into your resume, and reflect on how your work experience relates to your major or career plans.

Ask your supervisor or team leader to serve as a reference or professional contact for your future work experiences.

With some planning and preparation, you can turn your summer into a career-building experience. For additional information about finding a summer job, contact Student Employment Services at 419-372-2865.

CITY YEAR
 At City Year, we believe education has the power to help every child reach his or her potential. However, in high-poverty communities there are external factors and obstacles students are faced with every day that can interfere with their ability to both get to school and be ready and able to learn. We're working to bridge the gap in high-poverty communities between the support that students actually need, and what their schools are designed and resourced to provide. In doing so, we're helping to increase graduation rates across the country, and changing the lives of the students we serve. As a City Year Corps member, you'll commit to 11 months serving hands-on with students in low-performing schools to change their educational outcomes and their futures as a whole.

YMCA – STORER CAMPS
 Camping, like many Y programs, is about learning skills, developing character and making friends. But few environments are as special as camp, where kids become a community as they learn both how to be more independent and how to contribute to a group as they engage in physical, social and educational activities. Camping teaches self-reliance, a love for nature and the outdoors and the development of attitudes and practices that build character and leadership—all amidst the fun of campfires, bugle calls, canoeing, archery, talent shows and meaningful relationships. Y counselors are dedicated to making sure camp is an amazing experience for every camper.

Five Things to Take Away From Job Fairs

1. Business cards from the recruiters you've met. Remember to send thank you letters or emails to individual recruiters to express your interest in the organization.

2. Notes about contacts you've made. Writing notes on the back of a business card will help you remember specific details about a conversation with the recruiter. Also, jot down the names of people who did not have business cards. Take a few minutes after you leave each table to write these notes.

3. Information about the types of positions and training programs available at various organizations.

Most recruiters will have information for you to collect, including company brochures, job descriptions, etc. Make sure you demonstrate interest in the organization rather than the "give-aways" they have at their tables.

4. A better sense of your job options. If you have used your time effectively, you will have met with many recruiters whose organizations employ people with your skills and interests. Think about their hiring needs and requirements and evaluate whether your qualifications and background are a good match.

5. Increased confidence. A job fair gives you an opportunity to practice interacting with recruiters and managers in a more relaxed environment than that of a formal interview. Use this experience to practice talking about your career interests and goals, academic and personal accomplishments, and relevant work experiences.

Make the most of your time spent at job fairs. Check out different employers, jobs and career paths. Seize the opportunity to connect and network with potential employers who may offer you a job.

DON'T FORGET TO SAY "THANK YOU"

You did it! You attended the job fair, made many excellent connections, participated in interviews, and now feel confident your job search is off and running. What is the next step? Follow up by sending a thank you letter or email to all the employers you met at the Summer Job Fair to reaffirm your interest and remind them of your qualifications. Sending a thank you letter or email is not only proper etiquette; it also reinforces your ability to follow through. Please keep the following tips in mind:

Thank You

- Send letters or emails out in a timely manner, the next day, if possible. If your communication arrives within a day or two after your meeting with the recruiter, you have a better chance of being remembered.
- When deciding to send a letter or an email, consider that many recruiters are travelling for extended periods and keep in touch by email. A hand written note may be more formal, but may not be seen until long after the job fair.
- Address your letter or email to an individual, instead of using the name of an office or department.
- Remember to keep your letter or email concise; two to three paragraphs can be powerful and more likely to be read. As you highlight your abilities in the letter, focus on the company's needs rather than your own. Your letter is an opportunity to tell the recruiter what you can offer his or her organization.
